BINGO!

They begin arriving a hour before starting time, laying out their lucky items, pulling out tape, watercolor marking sticks, snacks and stacks of dollar bills.

They are young, old, male, female, dressed in jeans, shorts, pant suits. Some look very serious, others seem only to be paying half attention to what they are doing, still others chat with friends and acquaintances.

There is no representative "type." They are all bingo players.

Upland High School All-Sports Booster Club bingo is only one of many bingos held in the West Valley every week. On Wednesday evenings, most of the players in the cafeteria are regulars.

"Without regulars like Bubbles, Pat, Helen and so many others, these bingos wouldn't be nearly as successful," said booster president Jerry McGetrick. "Many of them come early and help us set up — we'd be lost without them."

"That one's my daughter," said the 30ish McGetrick pointing to 76-year-old Pat O'Brian, who grinned back at him.

"People don't come here just to play bingo, they come to have fun," McGetrick said. And fun they have.

O'Brian said she plays bingo every night and "twice on Wednesday." "This one is a scream," she said referring to Upland High's game. "The callers are fun; sometimes they have the coaches call. They tell me I keep them laughing."

Bubbles McCardia has been playing for three or four years and says she comes because she "just enjoys it."

"It gets expensive since I play about four nights a week but it evens out," McCardia said.

Used cards can make quite a stack of scrap paper (above) by the end of the evening. On the cover: With markers and popcorn at her side, Bubbles McCardia plays her usual four cards at once.

The most she has won, McCardia said, was $275 and it was at Upland. "I won blackout, which pays $200 and three games at $25 each."

They don't consider themselves gamblers although they both admit they play in Las Vegas too.

McCardia also plays at Alta Loma High School's Booster Bingo. "My husband tells me 'go ahead and go — you enjoy it.' I go to the ones I like."

O'Brian said the most she ever won was $375 one night at the senior center. "Oh, I also won $1000 at bingo but that was in Vegas and it was about 20 minutes after I got there."

"I never get too much," O'Brian said of her eight-times-a-week schedule. "Anyway, it gets me out of my daughter's and grandchildren's hair. I live with them."

Cindy Fraley, Alta Loma, had brought a friend with her, Art Frantz from San Francisco. Both had played before but neither were regulars.

Frantz said he used to play regularly but hadn't played in almost two years. "I used to play 30 or 40 cards at a time and every night." Frantz said it was easy to play that many cards and he enjoyed it.

Why did he stop? "I moved to Pacifica and it's a quiet place — they don't have bingo."

Frantz said the most he ever won playing bingo was $3,000 in a casino in Vegas. "I promptly went into the casino and lost every bit of it," he said, grinning.

Fralick said the only time she comes is when she has company and then brings the company to "amuse" them.

"I won $350 last time I played and I wasn't all that excited about it. I won't even scream bingo," she said.

Both Fralick and Frantz consider themselves gamblers. "You bet we are," she said, "We just got back from Vegas yesterday and we're here tonight."

Brenda Criss, Fontana, comes with her friend Barbara Ervin, Ontario. Criss is a four-times-a-week player while Ervin only plays once or twice a week.

Criss says she comes to win but if it wasn't fun too she probably wouldn't play. Never a big winner, "I've won $25 about four different times," she says she never comes out ahead but she's always hopeful.

Ervin agrees. "I end up in a hole most of the time but I always expect to win." The most she ever won during her six-month bingo career was $100. "I was really excited to win that much."

Mary Warden, Cucamonga, was recently widowed and she has increased her bingo playing to three or four times a week.

"I've been playing for years. I used to bowl but I can't do that any more — so I play bingo a lot," Warden said. She plays in Upland and Alta Loma both.

"I go to different places. Some people (those running the bingos) are nicer. If they aren't nice and fun to be around I don't go back," Warden said. "Some are too noisy. I come to relax and enjoy myself ... if there's too much noise it isn't fun."

Warden says it all seems to balance out. "Some weeks I win and then it pays for when I lose. Last week I won $200 and spent $70, so I'm ahead right now."

Warden is philosophical about her playing. "When I lose, I cut down; when I win, I go more often — I enjoy bingo but I enjoy the people too."

Helen Johnson, Ontario, is a five-times-a-week player who says she is pretty lucky. "My downfall is the pull tabs. I may win at bingo but I lose a lot playing the tabs."

Tabs are cards that have tear strips on the back covering possible winners (more often though losing combinations) of numbers or figures.

"I spend a lot on the tabs," she said,

"probably way too much but I like them." They sell for 50 cents apiece and most players are pulling tabs the same time they are playing bingo. "I spend at least $20 to $25 on the tabs here every week."

Does it ever pay off? "Sure," she said. "I've won a $100 several times — not bad for a 50-cent investment, is it?"

Booster club members are continually walking around with them for sale. "No one forces you to buy them," she said, "If you're weak, you're weak; I guess I'm very weak. But I win on them. Last week it was $125 and then a $100 ... I do alright."

Johnson says since most people play so many cards it's possible for the most experienced people to miss numbers. "If they tell you differently, they're lying. If you get a bingo and don't call it before the next number, you're out of luck," she said.

Johnson said her husband hates bingo. "Not that he doesn't like to gamble, he's at Los Alamitos tonight and he loves Vegas. I get lonesome so I play bingo."

Johnson is picky, like most players, about where she plays. "I went to the Indian Bingo (on the Morongo Reservation outside Banning) and it was just too big. I didn't win anything either. You go where they treat you right, that's what keeps you coming back."

Johnson says she knows she's not coming out ahead at the end of the year but that's all right because she enjoys herself. "I always bring about $50 — sometimes I go home with $200, others with a penny, if I'm lucky. I'm not disappointed if I don't win."

Johnson is of the opinion that bingo players are just regularly nice people who happen to like to play bingo. "There is nothing different about us — we play because it's fun."

Sue Lyon is a booster club member and volunteers at the bingos regularly. Not a bingo player herself, she did nonetheless fill-in in the beginning when they had a shortage of players.

Lyon has her theories about why people play bingo. "They take it very seriously; it's not just for fun."

"I had one woman player who is a regular tell me if she doesn't make $300 a week, she's down," she said.

Since packets can cost as little $10, Lyon said, when someone wins just one game, they're ahead. The minimum pay-off during regular games is $25.

Lyon says the majority of those playing are regulars. "They are very dependable people, very easy to get to know," she said.

Although bingo organizers at Upland High School make everything as comfortable as possible (free coffee and pop corn, bringing things to them, taking away trash, refilling their coffee), sometimes things go wrong.

"Last week, during the heat wave, it was absolutely stifling in here. We couldn't open the windows up at the top because we didn't have the pole to do it so we decided to turn on the fan to make things more comfortable. Unfortunately, it wasn't a fan, it was the heater," she said. "Everyone was very nice about it, they are a great bunch of people."

Lyon said when the bingo was organized a year ago, the organizers thought the bulk of the players would be seniors but it hasn't worked out that way.

"The groups change from week to week. The only thing they all have in common is they are all gamblers at heart."

Lyon thinks bingo appeals to women more than men because they are more detail-oriented and that is the kind of game bingo is.

"You have to be very quick and it takes a definite knack to play the number of cards some of these people do," she said.

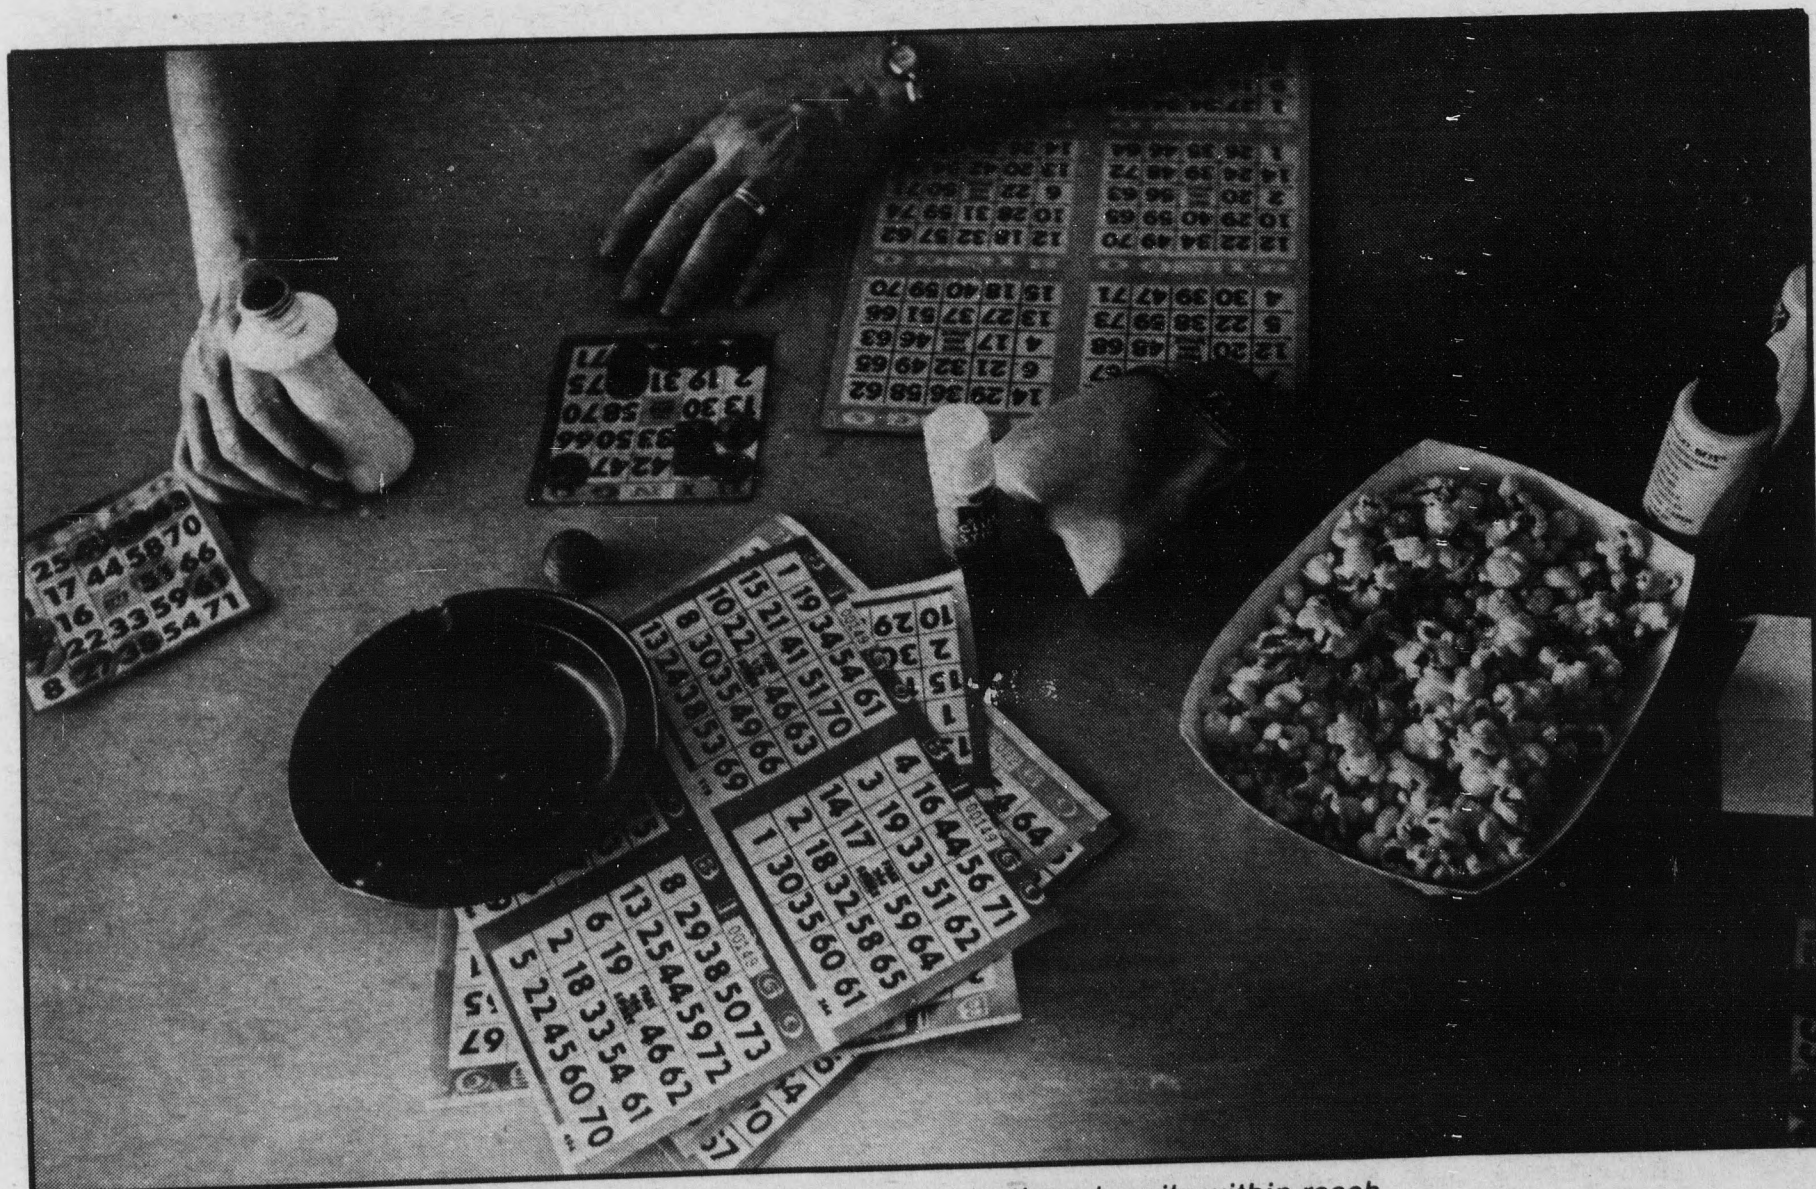

The biggest problems they have are with timing and callers. "It has to be not too fast and not too slow," she said referring to calling, "of course, what's too fast for one is usually too slow for another."

The Upland boosters club plays 20 bingos a night, 15 regular and five specials, in addition to any early birds they have time for before the regular program starts.

"We have people who show up an hour early. They have a place they want sit and they get here early to make sure they get it. We started the early birds to give them something to do before everything else starts." □

Floye and Mart Shoemaker display part of their bumper crop of red onions.

Garden keeps couple busy

By Joy Sommer

They may be Shoemakers by name but they sure can garden.

Floye and Mart Shoemaker have been Upland residents for 53 years and will be celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary Aug. 14.

Both retired, they spend a lot of time in their garden. They don't do anything special but every once in awhile they grow a surprise.

"Floye was out there pulling red onions the other day," her husband said, "and suddenly she pulled out a great big one. It was at least two pounds and had a circumference of about 18 inches. She was so startled, she ran next door and showed the neighbor."

Mart said he had no idea of how large they were until she pulled them up. "It surprised me as much as it did her," he said.

The Shoemakers found they had more than one of the supersize onions and have pulled at least 10 more.

"These are nice and sweet — you can bite into them like they are apples," Mart said with a proud grin. "Not me," chimed in his wife. "I like to put them on things but I don't eat onions like that."

Mart says since he only waters and fertilizes, he doesn't expect to get either bumper crops or oversize fruit or vegetables.

"But sometimes it happens. The onions were a nice surprise and there seems to be more of them out there now.

"A few years ago, I had a tomato plant that lived through the winter and then had five tomatoes in a cluster. They all appeared together, ripened together, looked exactly alike. They weighed about one pound each — boy, were they good," he said. "My friend told me they weren't tomatoes, they were watermelons."

A large portion of the backyard is given over to the couples crops and both spend time in the garden, although Floye admits the garden is his province.

Mart says he's had a garden all his life. "It gives me something to do. We've been retired for 18 years and it's been the fastest 18 years of our life," he said.

The couple met when she was 3 and he was 10. "We lived on neighboring farms in Duncan, Ok. — I

City and county agencies battle weeds

By Terry Tirella

Local city and county agencies are working hard to get weeds abated before this year's fire season starts in September, according to local officials.

Tractors and hand crews are finishing up work in the Upland and Rancho Cucamonga areas. "This year was bad because of all the rain. The weeds grew a larger size than normal and took more work to clear and haul the stuff off," Doc Whitfield, weed abatement officer for Upland, said.

He said areas were also experiencing a lot of regrowth because of the cloudy, drizzling weather in June.

Whitfield said his department sends out city council-approved letters to owners of weed-infested property by April 15, informing them to remove the weeds or the city will do it and charge the owner on his tax bill. The property owner is given 30 days to comply.

"There are two basic reasons for weed abatement; one is to keep fire hazards down, the other is to reduce public nuisance," Whitfield said.

He said crews use different types of equipment and that rocks in Upland make the area unique. "There are so many rocks, we can't use disk, they have to use graders and hand crews.

Tractors pull a large disk plowing weeds under; the grader has a big, black blade and scrapes the ground, according to Whitfield.

He said the city starts abating May 15 through 20 and contracts the weed abatement work out.

"There are fewer and fewer large parcels (to be abated) each year, but we have more and more smaller parcels," he said. Whitfield attributes the decrease to the building being done in the community.

"For instance (property) up on Mountain Avenue and Eleventh, on the northeast corner, was formerly a vacant lot. Now it's a commercial establishment."

"It's (weed abatement) not a glamorous job, but it's necessary," Whitfield said. "I'd hate to think what the city would look like if we didn't have weed abatement."

Rancho Cucamonga has a "very concerned weed abatement officer, Wally Tratz, checking areas constantly," Steve Rinard, inspector for Foothill Fire Protection District, said.

Rinard said Rancho Cucamonga has a year-round program and abatement started earlier this year. "We're getting regrowth of mostly mustard-type plants."

As in Upland, contractors do the abating using tractors and four hand crews.

In March, Tratz surveys streets and alleys. Twenty-one day notices are then sent to property owners, then a second series of surveys are done. "If the work hasn't been done we give (the assignments) to county contractors," Tratz said.

"We're toward the end of weed season now," Tratz, county weed abatement officer, said. "If citizens see property with a weed condition they can call. In most cases we're aware (of the problem) and the property is scheduled to be abated."

Rinard said when the fire district has a hot spot, an area they want abated right away, they coordinate weed removal with the county agency. "In some areas what we are trying to do in some areas is make a fuel break."

Rinard suggested residents reduce weeds to stubble and remove the cuttings by hauling it away to a dump or an area where it won't burn.

There should be 30 to 50 feet clearance area around the home. Having a garden hose, one in good condition, on hand, Rinard said.

"Sometimes during the Santa Ana winds, people will put sprinklers on their roofs," Rinard said. This action has saved homes which might be burned from cinders which fly during the seasonal 60 mph winds.

"For citizens in lesser developed areas, keeping wind rows (trees planted years ago to protect fruit on orchards) clear. Keep the Eucalyptus trees trimmed and debris cleared away," the fire inspector said.

"Generally brush fires are caused by arson. It (brush) burns easily because it (has all summer) has dried out and because of the winds," Rinard said.

Free seminar will focus on women alcoholics

"Special Problems of the Woman Alcoholic" will be the topic of a free seminar, open to the public, scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 6 from 9-11 a.m. in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's Pitzer Auditorium.

Muriel Zink, director of the Amethyst program at College Hospital in Cerritos, will be the featured speaker.

According to the California Women's Commission on Alcoholism, there are four million women alcoholics in the United States, comprising 35-50 percent of the alcoholic population.

Currently, however, only 18 percent of those seeking treatment are women. The upcoming seminar will reveal some of the reasons for this disparity, the physical and psycho-social factors affecting the woman alcoholic and what forms of help are available.

The presentation is one of a series of "Alcohol Awareness Hour" programs being offered as a community educational service by Pomona Valley Community Hospital's Alcoholism Treatment Service and the National Council on Alcoholism of East San Gabriel and Pomona Valleys, Inc.

Held on the first Saturday of each month at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, the programs are open to anyone interested in knowing more about alcoholism or chemical dependency and are offered free of charge.

For information, contact the NCA San Gabriel office at (213) 331-5316, the Pomona office at 629-4089 or the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Alcoholism Treatment Service at 623-8715, extension 1201.

Blood pressure screening

The Claremont Red Cross will be holding a free blood pressure screening clinic on Aug. 3 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Chapter House, 2065 N. Indian Hill Blvd.

Ducks for charter

Charter excursions are available aboard restored World War II amphibious landing crafts called Ducks.

Ducks, taken from the code letter DUKW given the crafts, can also pull in their feathers and take to land to deposit party-goers at nearby restaurants, hotels or picnic areas where the fun can continue.

Each Duck can accommodate 24 passengers. Charter Ducks can depart from any Mission Bay area hotel, restaurant or business. For more information, call (619) 273-3825.

Planning commissioner reappointed

By Joy Sommer

Mayor John McCarthy reappointed Richard Williams to a four year term on the Planning Commission. That leaves one other commissioner spot up for grabs since John Zinda has chosen not to serve again.

Summer fun at Disneyland

ANAHEIM — A summer of fantasy has begun at Disneyland featuring the premiere of a unique parade, fireworks, live music and, of course, the new Fantasyland.

An entirely new pageant concept, the Flights of Fantasy Parade, debuted June 18, showcasing memorable scenes from Disney animated classics.

The procession is brought to life through the use of larger-than-life, buoyant soft-sculpture figures. The whimsical Flights of Fantasy Parade will be presented throughout the summer season at 4 and 10 p.m. daily.

Returning after a five-year hiatus will be a traditional summertime favorite, Tinker Bell, who will signal the start of "Fantasy in the Sky" fireworks as she flies over Sleeping Beauty Castle each evening at 9 p.m.

Hours for Disneyland's summer session will be 9 a.m. to midnight Sundays through Fridays and 9 a.m. to 1 a.m. on Saturdays.

have also agreed to make sure no rubber or vinyl materials remain in the homes to be burned. Several local fire departments participate in these training exercises which allow firefighters to apply classroom knowledge in a practical manner.

Upland City Council unanimously approved a request by Western National Properties for a General Plan Amendment changing the land use designation from highway commercial to medium density residential and a zone change from highway-commercial supplemental use to multiple family residential.

The property effected by the change is located on about 4.5 net acres on the south side of Arrow Highway, west of Mountain Avenue.

Building officials of Western National are predicting if things go well construction should begin in November and completion is expected in June of 1984.

The Upland City Council

conducted the second readings and final adoption of two new ordinances at the last council meeting July 18.

One new ordinance deals with establishing second dwelling units as a conditional use and structure in single family residential areas.

The second ordinance amends the Upland Municipal Code relative to business license fees, how and when payable.

In a report prepared by Upland City Manager Lee Travers, an increase in building permits fees of nearly $20,000 over June of last year has been noted.

Fiscal year to date $131,418.10 has been collected. June total was $24,133 compared to $4,360 for last year.

Couple gets bird's eye view of France

By Jim Marxen

Jules Verne once amazed the world when he utilized a balloon in his tale of an eighty-day trip around the world. More than 100 years later Verne's homeland is still luring those who seek a different way to fly.

Kathy Frey

The French have apparently never lost their love for hot-air balloons — something Hal and Ruby Nicholson recently discovered on a three-day trip over that country's farmlands.

Among the "new aviators" are Ruby and Hal Nicholson, a Rancho Cucamonga couple who found that flying doesn't necessarily mean climbing into a jumbo jet and soaring into the sky at 500 mph.

While their trip was nowhere near the duration of Verne's imaginary flight, the Nicholsons were still able to view some of the world's most romantic scenery from a hot air balloon.

Their three-day balloon ride took them over the vineyards of Burgundy, France — a land speckled with ancient chateaus, green pastures and shimmering lakes.

"It was like a bus trip over the tree tops," Hal said.

A travel agent at Claremont Travel Center, Ruby Nicholson first heard about the trip at a seminar put on by Buddy Bombard — a balloon pilot who was organizing flights in France.

"We agreed it was something we would really like to do," she said.

The couple flew to Paris and made their way to Saulieu, a small town in central France that has acquired the reputation as a "gastronomic center".

On June 26, they took their first trip into the atmosphere.

Coincidentally, that flight took place on the first day of the Gordon Bennett Cup — a race from Paris regarded as the Grand Prix of ballooning.

"You hardly knew it when you left the ground," Ruby said. "You don't feel any motion at all."

Guided by a pilot and watched on the ground by a chase vehicle, the Nicholsons' balloon drifted across central France, touching down each day after 1½ hours aloft.

Taking off at night when breezes were more favorable, the balloonists repeated the procedure for the next two days.

"When we'd touch down the local people would stop what they'd be doing and come out to see us," Ruby said. "Of course I'm not very good at speaking French."

Following the tradition of early balloonists, the aviators celebrated each touchdown with a bottle of champagne shared with whoever came out to see the landing.

The couple said they had no fears of drifting into the heavens despite one rough landing.

"The first landing we had was the only rough one," Ruby said. "Just as we got almost to the ground a whirlwind came up and kept us dragging along until we hit a patch of thorns and berrys."

But, Hal said, the story had a happy ending: "He (the pilot) just pulled it back and up we went."

As one might expect, a balloon trip over the vineyards of France isn't cheap. Fare for a week-long trip is $3,300 per person and does not include the price of an airline ticket.

The tour price includes hotels, meals and land excursions, however.

Although they could have taken the six-day trip, the Nicholsons opted to see Paris from the ground.

"I even let him go see the Moulin Rouge one night," Ruby chuckled. Would they go up in a balloon again?

"Oh definitely," Ruby said. "I'd love to go on a trip over Africa."

Summer library programs a big success

By Linda Yao

Upland Library's summer activities program has been unusually successful this year. We have had hoards of children here nearly everyday seeking out books, movies, crafts and other programs.

Staff members have been speculating on why the great turnout. At first we all agreed it was due to the cloudy, damp weather. Kids were cooped up in houses and desperate mothers, looking for a break, were bringing them in for books and activities, we decided. Then when the weather suddenly changed we thought the crowds might be due to the heat. The kids are still cooped up, and mothers are still getting desperate, and the library is pleasantly air conditioned.

We have had more mothers and kids show up for the Tuesday movies than we've been able to accomodate. It's interesting to note that the same thing is true of the Wednesday night movies the Recreation Department is showing free at Magnolia

Library news

Park, although they have not had the misfortune of having to turn people away, as we have had to do. We will be moving the site of our movie to the east patio on the mall level so we can let in more viewers.

The patio is usually very pleasant, but it is not air conditioned. We feel the success of these free family movies points out the need for inexpensive (preferably free) family oriented entertainment in our community. We have been showing movies to a total of 200 during two viewings at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on Tuesdays. Recreation Department has had crowds of 500 or more.

Marie Rooth, Children's Librarian, has been the planner and main force behind our children's program this year. If you've been in to any of the activities you probably noticed Marie hanging on (desperately) to her clip board, with a wild look in her eye. This is her first summer program, and it is impossible to anticipate such an experience. We feel that the success of the program must be attributed, along with the weather, to Marie's creative planning, her ability to generate interest in the kids, and a willingness on her part, and that of her staff, to work hard.

If you have attended some of our programs and been put off by the numbers in attendance, we urge you to persevere. The crowds usually dwindle as families go on vacation and kids get involved in swimming and other summer activities. Programs will continue until Aug. 19 when the Riede Marionettes will perform free at 10 a.m. at Upland Elementary School Auditorium.

In addition, we have decided to extend the Tuesday movies into September when school opens. Unless this year is unique, there will be far fewer people in attendance by then. □

Book shows where you can get help

By Joy Sommer

Pinpointing just the organization or group to call can sometimes be harder than expected — especially for those new to the area.

Upland Public Library recognizes that need and has just published the newest edition of the "Community Resources Directory."

This is the fourth edition said Library Director Linda Yao and each one has been a little more detailed than its predecessor.

"We are very proud of the result," Yao said. "We have found that it gets a lot of use and the feedback we've received has convinced us it's something we want to continue."

Library Board Chairman Mrs. Edward Novell said in her introduction to the directory every effort had been made to achieve full coverage on agencies and organizations providing services to the community.

The 57-page directory has a subject index to make searching easier. From abortion to free clothing sources, day care, hotlines, immigration, runaways, recreation and weather and everything in between, the directory provides who to ask and where to get in touch.

Most of the listings provide either phone numbers or mailing addresses, meeting times and what services or areas the group covers.

when it's revised," Yao said. The last edition was worked on by both staff and volunteers but right now they are without volunteer help. Anyone interested in volunteering can contact Pat Castenada at the library, 981-1033.

"As soon as we finish one, we start revising and updating," Yao said. Sometimes the process takes a year and other times it's longer. "It just depends when we finish."

County agencies, Yao said, request it and use it extensively. "We are always getting requests for copies from them," she said.

Although the county publishes a directory, it is written for the professional (those in county or administrative positions) but the library edition is written to be used by the lay community. "That's one reason we included the subject directory," she said.

Copies are available at the library.

Group acts to alleviate suffering in Lebanon

By Joy Sommer

Most people cluck their tongue at the day's gloomy headlines, then go on about their business.

But some people — like Dr. Elias Malki — feel a compulsion to do something about the pain and suffering in a war-torn country like Lebanon.

Malki, a doctor of divinity, was among a group that included three physicians and two photographers who traveled to Lebanon at the invitation of that country's minister of health to view the damage to human life and property.

"We went everywhere and our hearts were touched by what we saw. We made up our minds to do what we could to alleviate some of the suffering we witnessed," Malki said.

What they decided to do was totally equip an operating room in a hospital for the handicapped in Beirut.

"There is only one hospital for the handicapped in the whole country and it didn't have an operating room. With what we are sending them, it will be fully equipped and they can begin using it."

Minister initiates year-long fast

By Terry Tirella

Local eateries may not see the Rev. George Spaicia for a long time — not because he's against junk food, but because he's against Satan.

The Cucamonga resident said he is fasting as an example of God's power. Spaicia is a minister for Questward Foundation Ministries, a counseling, training organization.

Spaicia said he has fasted since April 1. "As a minister I felt a calling for the need to demonstrate the power of the spirit to the body of Christ to the community."

"It's a work to prove there's hope," said Spaicia. "People are not seeing the power of God," he added. They hear the Word but don't see the power so they turn to the world."

Spaicia said there are two kinds of fasts; a natural fast people go on to clean their bodies and "there's a fast with the spirit of God in an outward manifestation."

"When this kind of (spiritual) fast happens there are no hunger pains, no headaches and no desire for food," he said.

"God has the ability to keep us physically. The fast is to give people hope," he said. The ministry is to edify life and help the body of Christ, he noted.

"Most of what we see on the (television) news or in movies is murder, rape, robbery, everything contrary to good. We're being taken away from the love of God and being taught to hate," Spaicia said.

"We've got to stop speaking and got to start showing. The world has to start seeing God's love again. This is a way he chose to do it."

Spaicia said other than a 60-pound weight loss, there have been no effects from his fast.

He said his fast was called by God, not him, so there will be no ill effects after it is completed, which will be in about a year. "People will say 'Look, he can do it (fast with no ill effects) and he's doing it.' They won't be able to deny what they see."

Initially, Spaicia drank coffee and took vitamins when he started his fast. "But God said it was to be a water fast to show His power and His power only," he said.

Spaicia said God talks to him through his inner mind but there are other ways God can communicate. "He can speak in any way He wants."

The local minister said God told him, "It's time for ministry to move outward because the time is growing short."

Spaicia said he is a volunteer chaplain for Chino Police Department, a volunteer chaplain and counselor with Lanterman State Hospital and a his fast, he was in an automobile accident that destroyed his car.

"We're constantly under an invasion or attack by forces, powers and principles of Satan. People don't know why they're depressed ... if they can understand why (they are feeling depressed) they can learn how to get rid of it," the minister said.

Spaicia said there was no documentation of his fast. "How can you document not eating ... who's to say I don't get up in the middle of the night and eat?"

"I fear God more than man — if I speak a lie I'll be held accountable for it," he said.

"I have all confidence in his (Spaicia's) credibility," Crpl. David James, chaplain coordinator for Chino Police Department, said.

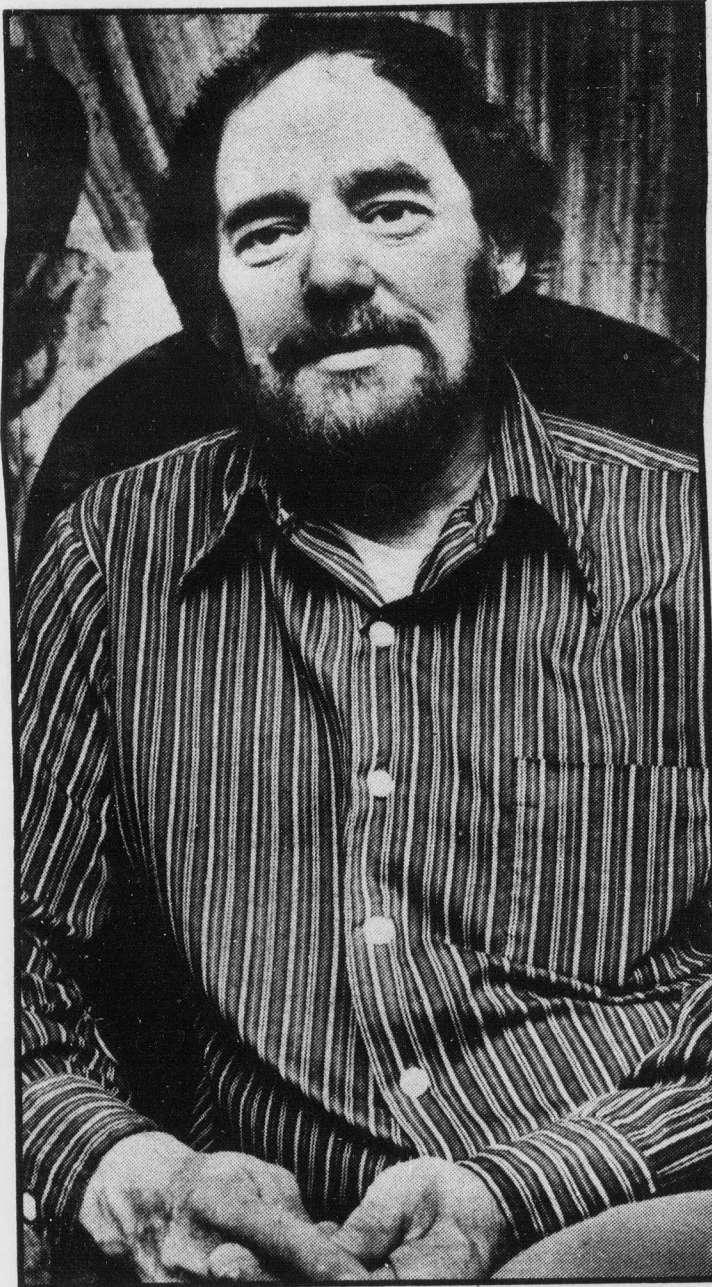

"I think it's (the fast) valid for the scriptural reasons he's (Spaicia) given me. He's very sincere in his beliefs," James said.

To be accepted into Chino's PD program, a minister must be ordained, take tests and have an FBI background check as a potential police officer would, James said.

phone counselor with Trinity Broadcasting Network, a Christian television station (Channel 40).

He holds weekly meetings at Olive Vista Home in Pomona for people with problems and has a weekly radio program on KLITE.

As part of Questward Foundation Ministries, Spaicia is also involved in a program called Neighborhood Happenings. "People say they would like to have help in their neighborhoods. We help them set up weekly meetings where people come into their homes for Bible study."

"Essentially the program was formed because some people will never go into a church but will go into a neighbor's house," he said.

The Neighborhood Happenings are directed by the neighbors themselves, not by Questward ministers. "We help them but don't control them," he said.

Spaicia said he is not a congregational minister. He is an evangelistic minister. "I had a church in Pomona I tried to pastor but God said 'No.' I am to work among all churches, not to sit in one place."

Spaicia said he has no salary, only free-will offerings. "We (he and his family) just live by faith." au90has been in the ministry for 23 years and was ordained three years ago. Originally from Brooklyn, N. Y., he has resided in California for 27 years, including 16 in Rancho Cucamonga.

Spaicia said he broke his fast three times at a birthday party on the 15th day. On the 30th day of situations such as suicides, attempted suicides and officer shooting situations, primarily in a counseling role, James said.

"I've seen him (Spaicia) have a substantial impact on other people's lives," the police chaplain said.

As a religious volunteer at Lanterman State Hospital, Spaicia visits one of the institution's units and sometimes ministers at Sunday service, said Fred Reed, a staff chaplain at the facility.

"Scripturally it's (a fast) supposed to enhance one's spiritual power, spiritual faith, faith in God and strength," Reed said.

Reed said Spaicia works in a unit with mentally retarded people who are "profoundly disabled, are very limited and multiply handicapped."

"He's very loving and very good. He gets a good response, a real response of love," he said. "I don't

Girl Scouts riding high on plans for bike trip

By Lauren Richards

When Joan Roth of Alta Loma says her favorite sport is biking, that's something of an understatement.

Roth, along with some of the 57 Girl Scouts she leads, is in training. In June of 1985, girls from the three troops of Spanish Trails' ACE Neighborhood plan a biking trip from San Francisco to Los Angeles, led by Roth.

A troop leader for the past 5 years, Roth decided to plan the cycling trip after housing a Girl Scout from Ohio during a similar national cycling event.

The national "Wheeling Free" trip, sponsored by Southern California's Spanish Trails, was more structured and rigorous than her proposed trip, said Roth.

"For the national event, the scouts looked for very athletic girls who had to meet specific physical requirements. My own daughter (Angie) was too young at the time to go on the trip," Roth said.

No, I don't get paid, but I work."

Joan Roth

While the national event gave participants only two months to condition for the San Francisco-Ventura trip, Roth's group has more than two years.

"I'll take any one of the girls who wants to go and has conditioned with us," Roth said.

"The Wheeling Free group had a distance of 33 miles a day. That's what we hope to work up to. To prepare, we'll probably take a lot of one-day picnic trips," she said.

Recently Roth and about 10 of the girls currently training took their first overnight camping trip as part of their conditioning.

The steep, 22-mile ride to Glen Helen Regional park only produced one casualty, Roth said.

"But she made it on the way back; it's downhill," Roth explained.

Next summer Roth is planning a half-way trip for the bikers, from San Diego to Los Angeles.

"For some of the girls, this will be their first trip away from home. We are all very excited about it," Roth said.

Once a Girl Scout herself, Roth spends most of her spare time working with her three Girl Scout troops.

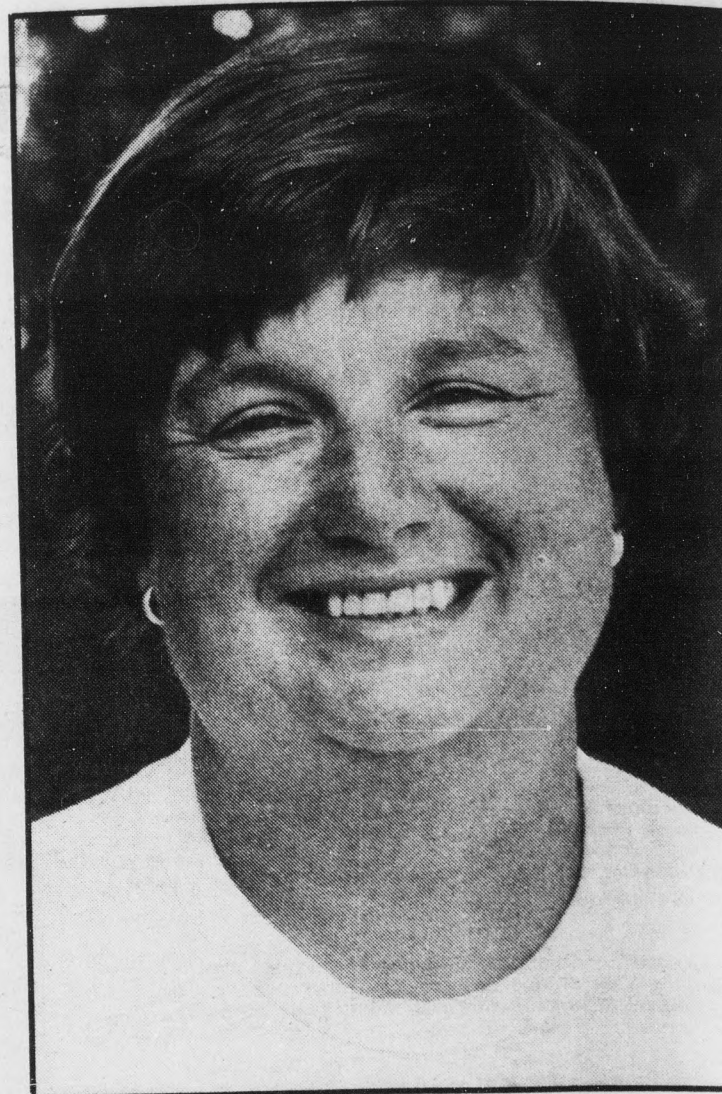

But when she's not directing a day camp for area girl scouts, planning a bike trip or supervising a troop meeting, Roth can often be found in one of her four children's classrooms working as a volunteer aide.

"I started volunteering in two of my kids' classes at (Deer Canyon Elementary) about two years ago....I guess when I was a Girl Scout, they really got me involved in volunteer work," Roth said.

"I used to be a candy striper, too," she noted with a laugh.

Despite what seems like an endless schedule of volunteer work, Roth insists she wouldn't stop, "though it gets frustrating trying to meet all the deadlines."

"I hate it when people ask me if I work. No, I don't get paid, but I work," she said. □

Prof offers perspective on Games

"We stop our Olympics for wars; the Greeks stopped their wars for the Olympics."

The remark comes from Stephen L. Glass, professor of classics at Pitzer College, an enthusiast — he objects to the word "authority" — on wines and food preparation, a former jazz guitarist and soccer coach and a self-styled "track nut."

Glass is also a rich resource in all things Greek — archaeology, ancient art and architecture, classical mythology and religion, ancient history, Athenian topography, ancient and modern Greek (both literature and language) and athletics.

Interviewed in his book-crammed office cluttered with Greek artifacts and posters, the ebullient, boyish professor talked at length about the ancient Olympics and the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, touching upon rewards to athletes in ancient times, the place of women in the Olympics, violence and corruption in the ancient games — and the time the Roman Emperor Nero (A.D. 37-68) competed — and won, of course.

Glass got interested in the Olympics almost by accident. He was studying for his doctorate in classical archaeology at the University of Pennsylvania and seeking a suitable subject for his dissertation, when a professor suggested he write about the excavated gymnasium in the Olympia valley where the games had been held since 776 B.C.

"I became more interested in the athletics than I was in the building," Glass said with a laugh.

The Pitzer professor visits Greece almost every year. But he and other historians, as well as the non-Greeks of ancient times, are not certain what caused the worship of athletics among the early Greek states.

"Olympia was a sanctuary of Zeus," Glass said, "and the games were dedicated to him. Thus there was a strong tie between athletics and religion." Women, now an important element in the Olympics, were not permitted to participate in ancient times.

"They couldn't even attend the Olympics under pain of death," Glass said. When the games were revived in 1896, the rules were modified and the first women competed in the Olympics in 1912.

In ancient times, the games were so important to the Greeks that the Olympiad, the four-year interval, became the calendar: Such-and-such an event occurred in the fourth Olympiad.

The rewards to the winners were enormous.

Besides the traditional olive or laurel wreath, a local hero might be awarded 500 drachmas, Glass said. This represented three year's wages for a skilled workman. Beginning in the 4th century, the winner of the stade race, a 200-yard dash and the Olympic's glamour event, received 1,200 drachmas — in comparison to a skilled workman's wages of two drachmas a day, he said.

As the years passed, the Olympics were beset by violence, boycotts and corruption.

"No event which produces such rewards and acclaim can be held without corruption," Glass said. "There was a strong anti-athletics strain in the early literature of Greece, protesting the adulation and the rewards out of measure to what had been accomplished."

The games became so corrupt that the Christian Emperor Theodosius abolished them in A. D. 394, and there was a hiatus of 1,500 years before they were revived by Baron Pierre de Coubertin of France, who was excited by excavations of the ancient Olympic stadium. Eight nations took part in the 1896 games.

The marathon foot race from Marathon to Athens attracted the most attention. It was held in honor of the messenger who brought Athens the news of the Greek victory over the Persians in 490 B.C., then died. The race, 26 miles, 385 yards, is still part of the modern Olympics.

The Pitzer expert sees the Olympics as a great opportunity for the United States to compete with European nations in events in which they are equally trained.

"International competition is very exciting," Glass said. "The European nations, because of their close geographical relationships and their interest in soccer, have a steady diet of international competition. But America's favorite sports — baseball, football, basketball — are not sufficiently popular in other countries for much international competition."

"Your country against the others. The Olympics provide the only opportunity for America to compete with other countries in what we do best — track and field."

Glass, of course, plans to attend some of the Olympic events with family and friends — two track days, field hockey, the soccer finals. And he'll have to dig down into his professorial coffers for more than a few drachmas.

His tab for a handful of tickets to the 1984 Olympics is $350. □

Mediation: an alternative to court

By Betty Davidow
Inland Mediation Board
Executive Director

The Inland Mediation Board is an addition to the rapidly expanding field of alternative dispute resolution programs. The mediation board is a non-profit, community-based service to help people settle their disputes without the need for costly and time-consuming court action.

Mediation is a totally voluntary and free process in which a specially trained mediator helps disputing tenants and landlords find a way to solve their problems. The mediators are volunteers professionally trained in the art of mediation. Mediators help disputing individuals work toward a mutually acceptable resolution of their conflict. The mediator's role in dispute is to help clarify issues, facilitate disputants' communication with each other and strive to conciliate the disputants' position toward a workable agreement. The mediator is not a judge or arbitrator. He or she is a middleman, a neutral third person who helps conflicting parties arrive at their own compromise. In a sense a mediator is a trained "peacemaker".

The Inland Mediation Board accepts cases relating to tenant/landlord problems. The problems handled include discrimination, the rights and responsibilities of both the tenant and landlord, eviction, security deposit, repairs and rent increase. The mediation board offers the opportunity to help you solve many of your rental problems.

Sometimes, disputes arise and grow out of proportion because of lack of communication. The mediation board serves as a neutral third person to help conflicting parties arrive at a mutual decision.

Individuals become aware of the Inland Mediation Board in a variety of ways — through the press, city government, community agencies, the rental owners association, legal services or by referrals from friends. They will call or visit the office and relate the situation. At that point, staff determines whether the case is "mediatable" or whether its complexities necessitate legal assistance. If there is a possibility that mediation may help resolve the dispute, and if the individual consents, a mediator will contact the other party involved, hear that side of the story, and see if an agreement can be reached. The majority of open cases are handled over the phone, and if both parties are willing, a mediation session is scheduled at a neutral location. The mediation session is confidential, with only the disputants and mediator in attendance. If the mediation is successful, the resultant agreement is put in writing and signed by everyone involved. However, the board is not an enforcement agency. That responsibility rests with the individuals themselves.

The Inland Mediation Board wants to encourage people with tenant/landlord types of problems to use this free, beneficial service. The office is located at 9375 Archibald Ave., Suite 205, Rancho Cucamonga and is open from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The telephone number is 987-8663. We welcome Spanish cases. □

Pomona bell may be pealing in Nevada

The search for the Pomona Fire Department's first bell may be over.

Firefighters are organizing a pilgrimage to Minden, Nev., after learning the bell may be owned by the 35-man Douglas County Engine Company Volunteer Fire Department, said Pomona Fire Chief John Fowlkes.

"It appears this is our bell. But we'll have to verify that by traveling to Nevada."

Firemen initiated the search in hopes the old bell — purchased by the Pomona Townsite Merchants in 1864 and later placed in the city's first fire hall — could be found and rung to herald the department's 100th anniversary Sept. 3.

The Minden fire company has the bell mounted in the small town south of Carson City and rings it with a sledge hammer to call volunteers to fires and alert the community to special events, Fowlkes explained.

The chief said he received a call Thursday afternoon from Dr. Michael Fischer, president of the fireman's association in Minden.

"He said he thinks it's our bell. He's going out and look at it again. He remembers it has a plaque, a number and is painted red," Fowlkes said.

"We've found it, I think, but I don't know if we'll get it," the chief lamented. "Now we need help."

"The catch is, Fischer wants a replacement. It must be the same size, 4½ feet high, 4 feet diameter base, cast iron and weighing about 2,000 pounds."

Fowlkes quoted Fischer as saying even if the Pomona department cannot find a replacement bell by September, the Douglas County company would loan the old bell to Pomona for its celebration.

Fowlkes said he would like to hear from anyone who has a replacement bell that fits the description. His phone number is 620-2214.

A number cast on the bell will assist local firefighters in making positive identification, he added.

Fowlkes said his office has been "swamped" with calls since news was released about the firefighters' latest efforts to retrieve the 119-year-old bell. One call came from New York City.

The most promising lead, he added, is the one from Chief Dan Hellwinkle of the Douglas County volunteer department.

Hellwinkle owned a bell that Michelle Begovich had purchased for $800 in 1982 at the Pony Express auction at Harrah's Club in Reno.

He donated the bell to the volunteer fire association headed by Fischer, a local dentist.

Pomona firemen, Fowlkes said, are aware the Pomona bell was sold to Harrah's Club in Reno for its Pony Express collection in 1955.

City officials were told in 1956 they would be notified if the bell was offered for sale, he added.

Fowlkes said Hellwinkle reported a plaque is attached to the bell in Nevada which reads: "70 Years Ago at Pomona — Fire Bell and Town Clock Combined."

This was the inscription originally painted on the bell owned by the Pomona Fire Department. Hellwinkle also reported the bell is painted red but has some white paint showing through. This could be remnants of the inscription, Fowlkes said.

Another piece of the puzzle also fits, Fowlkes noted. Firefighters attending a muster in Ontario were told the bell was owned by Sharkey Begovich, owner of a casino in Garnerville, Nev.

Plans have not been completed for the trip to Nevada. But Fowlkes said a group from the Pomona Fireman's Association hopes to meet with Douglas County Engine Company volunteers to negotiate "some kind of trade."

"Hellwinkle agreed the bell has sentimental value for us. But he also stressed the volunteers need a bell."

Edith Ayala, Pomona administrative assistant, said the Nevada firefighters planned to build a tower to house their bell.

YMCA launches recruitment drive

The West End and Chino Family YMCAs are launching their annual recruitment drives for members to join the Y's parent-child family programs.

Programs consist of Y-Indian Guides for fathers and sons, Y-Indian Princesses for fathers and daughters and Y-Indian Maidens for mothers and daughters.

The programs are geared toward 6- to 9-year-old children with their parents.

Y-Indian Braves is a new program for mothers and sons. It will begin this year if there is sufficient interest.

The Y also offers Y-Trailblazers for fathers and their sons 10 to 12 years old.

Each program involves the parent and child in a local "tribe" — a group of six to nine other parents and children.

Tribes meet in members' homes and work on various projects and activities. Several campouts and family events are held during the year with all tribes participating.

More than 200 families now participate in the programs in the West End of San Bernardino County.

For more information, persons may call the West End YMCA at 986-5847 or the Chino Family YMCA at 591-1708.

The YMCA is a member agency of the West End United Way.

Speak Out:

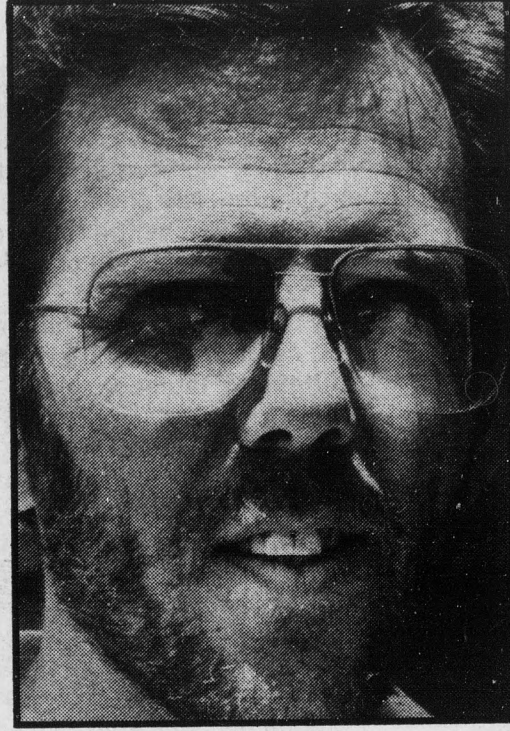

What would you do if a UFO landed in your front yard?

Erin Mathews, Upland: I would get my dad up and call up the police and see what they had to do with it and maybe take it over to where they launch the rockets and see what they thought.

Susan Marlett, Upland: I would run. I would not go inside and check it out. I would get help from a neighbor.

Lynn Clark, Upland: I'd love it, it would be great! We look for them in the desert all the time.

Jason Hale, Upland: I'm not sure what I would do, I guess I'd hide. First see what is going on and then call the police.

Reynolds Aluminum hikes prices for scrap aluminum

Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company has raised the price it pays consumers for scrap aluminum and aluminum castings at its Rancho Cucamonga location, 9910 Sixth St., open Tuesday through Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Reynolds now pays 30 cents per pound for aluminum cans in Rancho Cucamonga, and has raised the price to 25 cents per pound for aluminum scrap and castings.

"Our raise in prices for all aluminum is Reynolds' way of encouraging consumers to recycle not only aluminum cans, but also other aluminum items including siding, gutters, storm door and window frames, and lawn furniture tubing. These items should be free of non-aluminum parts, and cut to lengths not exceeding three feet," Greg Crawford, Reynolds complex manager, said. "Aluminum recycling has always been a beneficial means of cleaning up the environment, while conserving energy. With summer now here, recycling also provides a convenient means of earning extra vacation money," he said.

For information about the recycling center programs call 980-1203 or (800) 228-2525.

Travel to a Spanish village by the sea

SAN CLEMENTE — You've been everywhere and you've seen everything, Right?

Lately, you travel just to be going somewhere — anywhere.

What a waste.

Try a trip to the Spanish village by the sea, San Clemente. There you can gaze in wonder at a historical drama, performed under the stars in a natural canyon bowl that rivals any amphitheater in the world!

Walk through the Magic Arch at the entrance to La Christianita Bowl and find yourself cast back in time to 1769, in a wilderness known only to the Juaneno Indians until the Spanish came surging through.

Dine outdoors and settle back for two hours of solid entertainment.

Sure, you've seen pageants before, but none like "The Cross and the Arrow," the Pageant of La Christianita. "The Cross and the Arrow" will transport you into another world — a world where soldiers cross swords; where conquistadores prance on horseback; where Franciscan priests move about preaching their faith; where Spanish dancers flaunt their charms, and where confused Indians find themselves caught up by a "civilization that totally bemuses them."

This year the pageant will be performed through July 31, except Monday and Tuesday. For information, call 498-0880 or 493-7198.

Dogs spell danger to postmen

With the arrival of the "dog days of summer," Pomona Postmaster Albert Morten Jr. has appealed to dog owners to help protect letter carriers from biting canines.

Eight local letter carriers suffered dog bite injuries last year. Thus far this year, six dog bite cases have been reported — three within the last month, said Morten.

"Dog bites can be disastrous and that's why we're asking the cooperation of dog owners. We're hoping they will help protect both their pet and their letter carrier," he added.

The postmaster suggested that dog owners keep pets in an area away from the mailbox and the areas used by the letter carrier to access property.

"If the pet is not kept behind a secure fence, then we suggest the owner restrain the dog with a leash or keep it inside during the usual hour of the carrier's delivery," Morten said.

The Postal Service, he explained, has the right to protect its carriers by refusing to deliver mail to a household with an unrestrained dog. In the case where a dog is allowed to run loose, delivery to the entire neighborhood could be affected, he said.

The Postal Service provides counseling for bitten carriers wishing to seek legal action against dog owners, Morten noted.

"Things don't have to go that far. We constantly alert our carriers to the problem. But the real solution to dog bites is for the owner to help us. It's the old story of an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure," Morten said.

guess you could say I married the girl next door."

They were married when she was 16 and he was 23. "We were both farm kids. In fact she used to punch cattle and her daddy let her bring her cow pony with her when we got married," said 83-year-old Mart.

Mart made a living as a heavy duty equipment operator and Floye worked for the Upland Lemon Growers Association for 33½ years. "They told me when I hired on you had to have a strong back and a weak mind, I told 'em I guess I qualified," said the petite Floye, now 76 years old.

The couple credits their long marriage to the fact they help each other. "For 40 years she got up and made breakfast every morning and I'd make the bed — now she washes the dishes and I dry them. We help each other, both out in the garden and in the house." □

Volunteers share selves with needy

The spirit of volunteerism — people helping people — is thriving at the Women's and Family Crisis Center in Pomona.

Some 421 families have received food, others have collected clothing and many have gained a new perspective through counseling services and job referrals provided by the agency within the past three months.

Nell Soto, executive director, says she couldn't do her job without the aid of volunteers and contributors with "a soft spot" for those who are down and out.

Jess Vallejo is one of Soto's "special people." A man she says has "a reputation for a good heart," he supplies the agency with apples, oranges, tomatoes and other fruits and vegetables from J&G Produce in Pomona.

Julian Jimenez Jr., manager of Ruiz Mexican Foods, shows up at the center twice a week with 76 dozen corn tortillas and on a weekly basis provides 48 dozen flour tortillas to help feed the city's hungry residents.

Volunteer worker Cuca Corrales, 81, and resident Lila Warren are women Soto describes as "constant friends" of the center.

A former social worker, Warren often talks with center visitors to help relieve their despair. Corrales works at the center nearly each day, sorting clothing and household items for people in need.

Corrales expresses the sentiment of other volunteers when she says it makes her "happy to be helping poor people."

Some of the donated items are sold at rummage sales to raise money for staples and other items not contributed. The agency has no other funding source for food and clothing, Soto emphasized.

Vallejo, a man who believes in "sharing the wealth," sees a need for more volunteers to solicit contributions from a larger group of food suppliers, such as those represented at the Los Angeles Food Market. Owners of small shops and large plants also could be induced to donate excess or day-old items, he contends.

Persons interested in helping or those who wish more information may call 623-9751.

In addition to providing food, shelter and job referrals, Soto said the agency's responsibility is to make people feel good about themselves.

"Some come in with a tail between their legs. We try to make them feel good and it's rewarding when they walk out with groceries looking happy," Soto said.

The agency's small office on Center Street is filled each day with residents in need of food, shelter and work. Many receive assistance and others are referred to different agencies. Still, Soto laments, "we don't do enough."

Medical equipment goes to Lebanon

Malki and his associates have purchased $20,000 worth of surgical equipment from Reap International in Upland. "Right now the only thing holding us up is shipping everything to New York," Malki said. Everything is crated and ready to go.

Mid-East Airlines has offered to ship everything to Lebanon free from New York, Malki said. "Now it's up to us to arrange the shipment to New York. I'm aiming for it to be headed to Beirut soon."

Although Malki serves as president of Community International, a middle eastern gospel outreach group, the gift to the Beirut Hospital has no religious ties. □ doubt his sincerity and he certainly seems to be surviving (the fast).

"I've fasted some, but I have great difficulty with it. Maybe I don't have the faith or am unable to make the sacrifice," Reed said.

"I'm an ordinary minister, father and husband. I'm not anyone special," Spacia said. "God will speak to anyone ... (He) wants to reach the community with a message of hope." □

Miners' Days begin

Dances, craft fairs, costumes, logging contests, carnivals, parades and the 30th Annual National Burro Race will highlight Old Miners' Days Saturday through Aug. 7 at Big Bear Lake.

The festival, sponsored by distributors of Coors beer, is being presented by the Old Miners' Association with proceeds going to benefit various local, community groups.

All of the events are open to the public at little or no cost, with many encouraging participation by visitors. Area residents traditionally attend events during the celebration dressed in authentic miner's garb of the late 1800s.

Kick-off event for the festival is the Logger's Jubilee and Old Time Country Fair from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, July 30-31 at the Cluster Pines Marina in Fawnskin.

How to arrive at a happy medium.

It's easy with our Level Pay Plan.

If you've been going through the ups and downs of paying your monthly gas bills we have a way to help balance things out. With our optional Level Pay Plan.

It'll spread the costs of your higher winter gas bills over the entire year. So you face approximately the same size gas bill every month. Summer and winter.

Here's how it works: we'll estimate your total gas bill for the upcoming year based on the history of gas used in your home and our current rates.

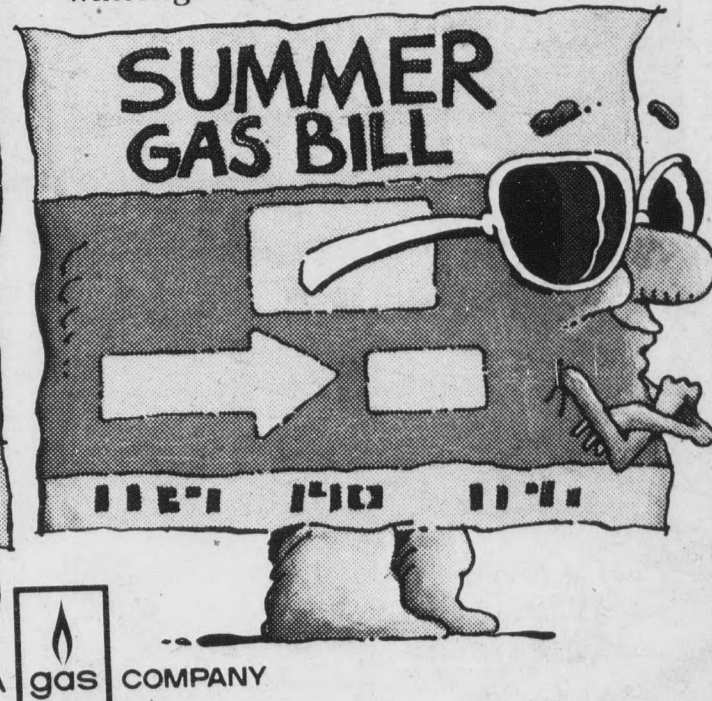

Then we'll divide the amount by twelve to establish your monthly Level Pay Plan amount. On the twelfth month your bill will be adjusted to reflect any underpayment or overpayment based on your total actual gas usage compared to your estimated usage.

Throughout the year we'll continue to read your meter and review your bills. And your Level Pay Plan amount will be adjusted whenever your average usage decreases or increases substantially or the month following any rate change. That will help keep the final month's adjustment to a minimum.

To participate in the Level Pay Plan just pay the Level Pay Plan amount on your August gas bill. And if you decide to drop the plan at any time, simply notify us. It doesn't cost you a thing.

For more information call your local Gas Company office.

You'll like the convenience of our Level Pay Plan. And you'll find it's an easy way to get even with your high winter gas bills.

New 4-wheel-drive rescue vehicle donated in R.C.

By Terri Tirella

West End Search and Rescue will be adding a new 4-wheel-drive vehicle as a result of Rancho Cucamonga community support.

Cucamonga Service Club was able to make a down payment on the vehicle when fund-raising proceeds and other service group donations topped the $5,000 mark.

The Service Club fund-raising efforts included a recent spaghetti dinner as well as Bingo held every third Friday.

Another fund raiser will be held Sept. 18, 2 to 7 p.m., with proceeds to go toward paying the balance on the rescue vehicle. Shane Dominic will entertain dinnergoers along with others entertainers.

Other donations were received from the Upland Women's Club, VFW Post 2085 and Auxiliary, Harry and Grace Molter, Alta Loma Manor Retirement Home, painting contractor Larry Johnson, Hens 'n

Claremont pair master Oriental art of Aikido

A Claremont couple — both college instructors — are the first persons to attain the rank of shodan, or first-degree black belt, in the Claremont Aikido Dojo.

Ronald Rubin, a philosophy professor at Pitzer College for 12 years, and his wife, Susan Perry, a teacher at Cal State Fullerton for three years, studied 4½ years to attain the rank.

Rubin describes aikido as a non-competitive art similar to karate. Dojo means meeting place or group, he added.

"Aikido reduces the stress of daily living," added Perry. "It is useful to establish control of oneself and is therapeutic exercise which is good for the body."

"It contains some ritual and some instruction in self-defense, but the art allows for self-expression," Perry added.

Rubin noted that there are no tournaments in Aikido, as in karate. It stresses cooperation and sharing.

Perry, who just received her doctor of philosophy degree from Claremont Graduate School, and Rubin are assistant instructors at the Claremont Aikido Dojo.

The local program was started in 1978 through the Claremont Human Services Department. Classes are offered for children and adults Monday and Wednesday evenings.

The head instructor is Richard Harnack, nidán (second-degree black belt). Perry and Rubin will teach a class this fall in Montclair. They will demonstrate the art at the Montclair Plaza July 25.

Persons interested in joining the summer aikido classes through the Human Services Department may call 624-4531, extension 280. □

Holsteins Restaurant, Femino's Italian Cuisine, Bill Owens and his Senior Citizen Band, Gabe Petrocellia and Alta Loma High School Jazz Band.

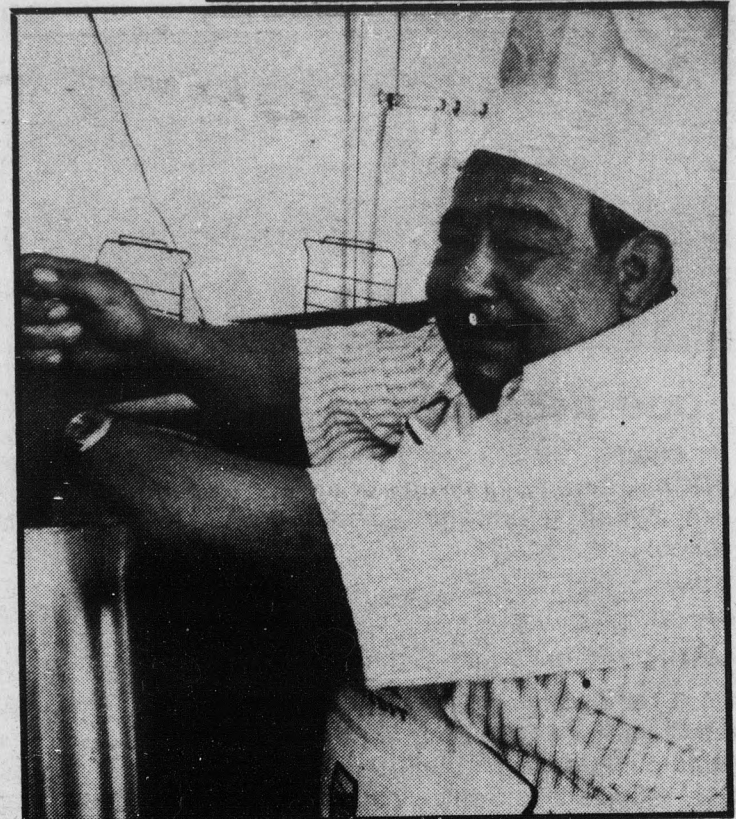

Also donating were Mel Shryer of Sunrize Market and Anthony and Susan Sciafani who gave a donation in the memory of David L. Osburn.

The club is at the corner of San Bernardino Road and Hellman Avenue, in Sweeten Hall, one block north of Foothill Boulevard in Cucamonga.

"The club membership wants to thank Chuck Leggio, president of Mark Christopher Chevrolet and the dealership on their help to make this vehicle purchase possible at the low cost of approximately $13,500," Mike Michaels, club secretary, said.

He said the club had to stop their Friday night bingos because of lack of support. "The club is the home of Monday night Bingo and is changing the big Bingo night to the first and third Mondays of the month. All first and third Bingos will pay $100 to $200 on all pots. Total pots $2,200 plus the 645 p.m. All other Mondays will have regular Bingo with pots up to $250."

For more information call 989-1157 or 987-9002.

BISQUE DOLLS

A GROWNUP'S TOY

Dolls are no longer just playthings. Porcelain "bisque" dolls are collectibles and can be worth thousands of dollars.

One antique doll recently sold for $36,000, according to Ingrid Carelli, who teaches dollmaking in Upland and Rancho Cucamonga.

"It's not for everyone," she admitted. "It's a luxury."

While her dolls are new, they are made with time-tested methods.

Molds taken from antique dolls are used to create porcelain dolls that are hard to tell from the originals.

Carelli adds paint, glass eyes and hair and the result is lifelike.

Someday, these reproductions will be antiques, she says, bringing in the owner hundreds if not thousands of dollars.

From a shop in downtown Ontario, Carelli displays her works which she hopes will someday include a self-designed model.

"We try to make these dolls as close to the old ones as possible," she said.

"Anybody can make a doll but to do it right — that takes a certain talent."

Dollmakers must also have patience, she said. The process takes hours — even days. Several steps, including two kiln firings, are taken to form a dolls face, limbs and torso. □

Imaginative faces cast from plaster moulds give two of Carelli's dolls a lifelike appearance. Clothing can become an expensive proposition, Carelli says, with dresses costing upwards of $45.

Education begins early at academy

By Matt Coker

"There are many who hold, as I do that the most important period of life is not the age of university studies, but the first one, the period from birth to the age of six. For that is the time when man's intelligence itself, his greatest implement is being formed."

— Maria Montessori

With their cheeks looking as if they are glued to the carpet, three children lie asleep on their sides. Another tot, somewhat younger than those in dream land, is sitting at a tiny table munching on a snack.

The oldest of the boys in the room is placing wooden numeraled blocks end-to-end as three other children sit quietly on a row of miniature chairs lined across the room.

Welcome to Rancho Cucamonga's Montessori Academy.

It is not a military, religious or driving academy, but a school which specializes in an educational method dating back to the turn of the century.

The academy, which trains youngsters up through their junior high school years, came to the area three months ago after 25 Rancho Cucamonga parents with children enrolled in the Claremont Montessori Academy requested one be started in the area.

Fully accredited with county and state agencies and the Association Montessori Internationale (AMI), the program, which was developed in Italy, focuses on children's senses to observe, hear, taste and smell.

Montessori teachers — with the aid of specially designed classroom materials — implant the seeds of algebra, science and language arts into student's minds — from those who barely walk to those about to enter high school.

While a number of instructors scoff at teaching a child just months after leaving its mother's womb, those who run Montessori schools say those years are the most critical to education.

At the same time, Montessori schools train youngsters to care for themselves. Babies often sponge off tables and sweep up crumbs from the floor after eating. There are also materials at the school which teach children to fasten, lace, button and wash dishes.

Seven and eight month old babies are placed in seventh and eighth grade classrooms where they observe the older children, who in turn learn to diaper, feed and handle the infants.

The babies are put in there own classrooms when they are "not content to watch," said Kris Thewes, a Montessori administrator. "When they want to get in and do it, that's usually the time to start."

There are not really any grade levels in Montessori elementary schools. While children are broken up into age groups, it is not uncommon for them to move up or down as their progress dictates.

The reason children are crossed-aged is to give the older children a sense of responsibility and the younger children a glance at what their studies lead up to.

"Older children can give lessons to younger

New safety seat law seems to be working

The number of children in California who are victims of serious traffic accidents has dropped nearly 10 percent since a new law took effect in January requiring parents to use safety seats for children who are passengers.

California Highway Patrol figures from January through April show 1,328 injuries or deaths of children under the age of 4, compared to 1,482 during the same period last year before the law was enacted.

Bob Metallo of the Ontario CHP station said there has been only one child traffic fatality in the valley since the law was passed.

The legislation requires child passengers under 4 or weighing less than 40 pounds to be in federally approved safety seats when traveling in a car or light truck with a parent or legal guardian.

Children riding in a vehicle other than that owned by a parent or guardian must be placed in either a safety seat or seatbelt. The law applies only to vehicles registered in California.

CHP Commissioner James E. Smith said: "There's probably not a veteran CHP officer who hasn't been shaken pretty badly by a traffic accident involving children who are helpless victims of adult driving mistakes."

"That's why the CHP fully supports the child safety seat law. It saves youngsters. We want the public to know that. And we're not reluctant, where it seems the best way to handle the situation, to write a ticket for violation of the law."

Since the first of the year, which included a two-month "warnings only" period, the CHP has issued more than 2,000 tickets to motorists who failed to comply with the safety seat law. Parents who show the court they have purchased an approved safety seat will have the citation dismissed. Other first offenders face fines up to $50.

Delegates for school employee talks picked

Representatives from school districts in Region 55, Area F, have been selected as delegates to the 57th annual conference of the California School Employees Association, slated for Aug. 1-5 in Pasadena, according to Judy Applebee, regional representative.

They include:

Chaffey College Chapter Number 431 — Barbara Cherbak, president, community services assistant; Cledith Rue, program assistant-business office; Edwina Kellnar, community services typist.

Chaffey High Chapter Number 210 — Dorothy DesLauriers, vice president, library assistant; Helen Gee, maintenance secretary; Mike Ede, grounds worker; Ron Weaver, swimming pool technician.

Cucamonga Chapter Number 553 — Bernice Mercer, president, tutorial aide; Liz Cutshall, district office receptionist.

Ontario-Montclair Chapter Number 108 — Carolyn Metzger, president, clerk typist; Helen Richardson, intermediate clerk typist; Brigit Andrejko, instructional aide — reading lab; Andy Andrejko, maintenance worker.

Upland Chapter Number 163 — Kristi Rogone, president, account clerk; and Joan Davis, attendance clerk.

Sweet Adelines never without a song

By Terri Tirella

Preserving America's musical heritage is only a small part on which the Pomona Chapter of Sweet Adelines Inc. focus their energies.

The local chapter is made up of women from Upland, Alta Loma and Rancho Cucamonga, as well as members from as far away as Whittier and Glendora who join together to harmonize at Pilgrim Congregational Church, 600 N. Garvey Ave., in Pomona Tuesday nights at 7:30.

"Anybody who enjoys singing and can carry a tune is welcome to join us," Glenda Smith, chapter president, said. She along with 70 or so local singers are out to "Harmonize the world," the Sweet Adelines' motto.

Sweet Adelines is an international organization with approximately 30,000 members world-wide.

The local chapter holds a show in fall where members sing as well as visiting quartets. "We do a number of local performances for clubs, nursing homes and churches," Smith said. According to the chapter president, Sweet Adelines usually sing for nothing but sometimes will charge a small fee.

Another tradition for the harmonizers is their annual spring competition. "The organization requires each chapter to compete once every two years. Not to be nasty or mean but to keep the groups working," Lois Whitney, Pomona chapter director said.

All chapters, whether Japanese or Swedish, must sing competition music in English, Whitney said. "We're working to preserve an American tradition."

While the organization will sing different kinds of music they mostly stick to the older songs. "They (older songs) offer a lot in the quartet field," Whitney said.

"Barbershop music is Americana...this is where it started, the same as with county western, Appalachian and Negro spiritual music. We work very hard to teach the craft," she said.

"We sing barbershop music, old songs arranged in barbershop style and a few new songs," Smith said.

Smith said Sweet Adelines' music is made with four voice ranges. "One voice sings melody, we have a bass singer, a tenor who sings above melody and a baritone."

"Baritone is also a harmony part and sings in the same voice range as melody. It provides the last ingredient you need for a barbershop chord," she said.

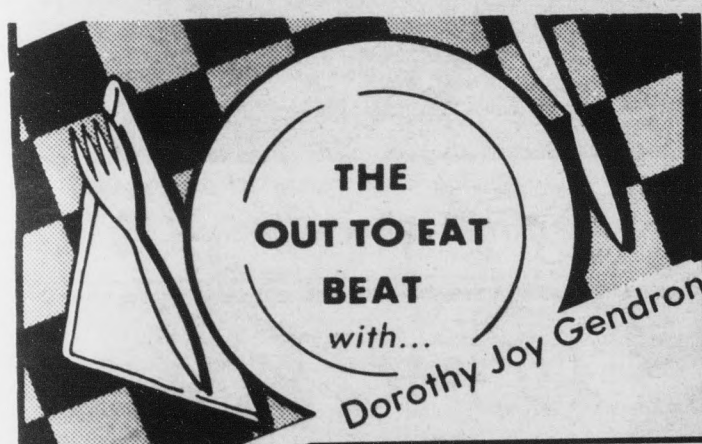

Sweet Adelines offers a way for women to get out of the house. "As a hobby it provides an opportunity to travel. Each year we have a regional conference sometimes in Detroit, Las Vegas or Hawaii. Quite a number of organization members attend," Smith said.

"We have more fun than any group I've been a part of," she said. "We know each other so well and have a lot of comradery." Smith has been with Sweet Adelines for 11 years.

The local chapter was started in 1961 when a group of 20 women or so, wives of men involved with barbershop quartets, decided to form their own group and join Sweet Adelines Inc., according to Jean Feld, a charter member.

Another charter member Birdie Harris, said "It's wonderful to belong to Sweet Adelines. Everybody

If you enjoy celebrations, especially anniversary celebrations, then the place for you is the Taco Hut at 9421 Foothill Blvd. in Cucamonga, in Perry's Shopping Center. It will be their big first anniversary and they want you to join them in the festivities starting on the 27th of July.

With each order you'll have a chance to draw for a free Taco Hut t-shirt. Another offer that will interest you is a free medium drink with at least a $5.00 purchase plus the ad from this section.

Taco Hut uses only homemade tortillas in the creation of the burritos and fresh tamales are prepared every Thursday. If you're a senior citizen, you'll get a 10% discount on all your orders.

Taco Hut is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. and on Saturday from 11 a.m., they're closed on Sunday.

HO'S Restaurant at 817 W. Foothill Blvd., in Upland at San Antonio and Foothill, in the Alpha Beta Shopping Center, specializes in the cuisine of Hong Kong.

As you become more acquainted with Chinese cuisine you'll be able to recognize the subtle differences in taste that indicate the region where that particular dish originated.

Master chef, Phillip Ho tells us that Hong Kong style food became popular by absorbing the best recipes brought into Hong Kong by a variety of people from all areas of China. Eventually this developed into the Hong Kong style of cooking.

Chef Ho recommends his unique beef-shrimp-chicken. Tender beef is sauteed with fresh shrimp and only the white meat of chicken is used, plus a variety of Chinese vegetables served with sesame chicken, egg roll, tai royal rice and tea, all this scrumptious food will only cost you $3.25. Another suggestion is the Hunan beef-shrimp-chicken is tender beef, fresh shrimp and chicken sauteed in a special garlic sauce, also served with sesame chicken, egg roll, tai royal rice and tea. The price is also $3.25.

HO'S menu is really interesting reading. Have you ever had Chinese spaghetti? How about Mongolian beef? Ever tried oyster scrambled egg, Chinese style? If you answered "no" to any of the above questions, then the place for you is HO'S. The hours are from 11:30 a.m. until 9 p.m. daily. Until next week Bon Appetit!!

Jelly Bellys make for a sweet business

By Joy Sommer

Jelly Bellys rode the campaign trail with President Reagan. They even went up with Challenger.

Jelly Bellys are the gourmet answer to plain old fattening jelly beans.

They are also a big part of the business at the Rancho Cucamonga's Sweet Mercantile Co.

Upland's acting police chief Howard Seay and his wife, Johnnie, are the owners of Sweet Mercantile.

"Johnnie runs the business — she only lets me show up when someone is sick — and then it's grudgingly because I never know the prices," Seay said.

Jelly Bellys, those pectin and fruit delicacies, are sold in the hundreds of pounds every month.

"When we saw Reagan was popping them when he was running for president, we went out and ordered for the next four years," Seay said. This little piece of forethought assured the Seays had ample supplies when many surrounding stores went without.

The store, Johnnie said, sells about 400 pounds a month with favorites like cherry, pina colada, strawberry dacquiri, bubblegum, cotton candy and licorice leading the way.

Johnnie says people don't mind paying more for a gourmet treat like Jelly Bellys because they're worth it. "We have people that come in regularly to buy their favorite flavors and who won't settle for a regular jelly bean — not that we sell them anyway."

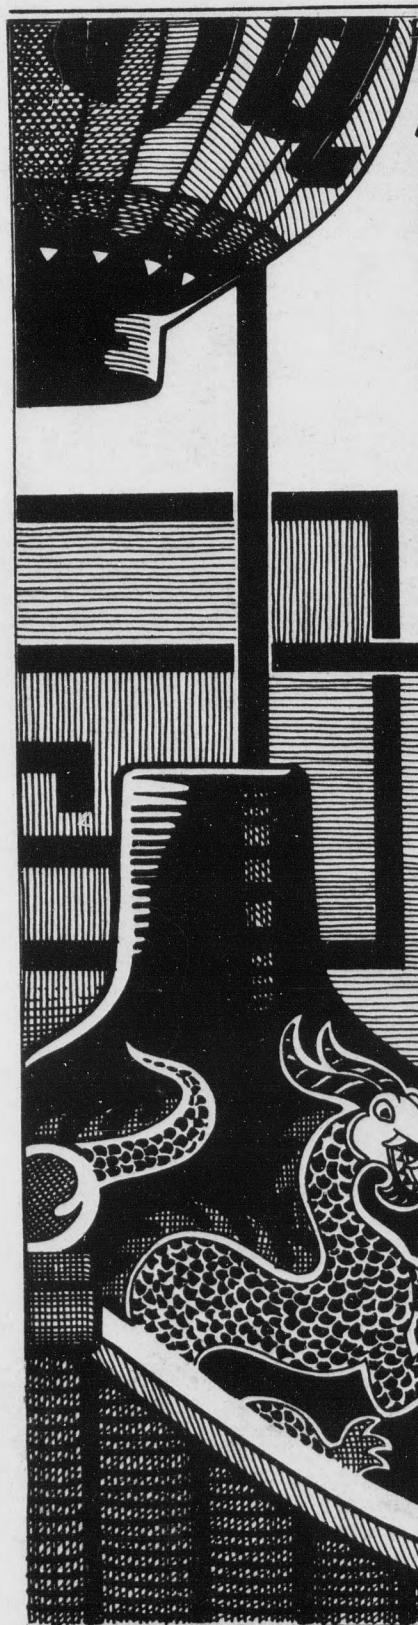

Although the shop was originally started as something that the Seays could run after retirement, it has evolved into Johnnie's "thing."

"She does it all with the help of our son and a few family members," Seay said. "I really have little

Unique musical group performs for children

The Brass Collection, four young men who perform on a garden hose, funnel and ram's horn as well as on regular brass instruments, has been together for about 10 years.

The group is headed by trumpeter Bill Bing, head of Caltech's instrumental music department. Other members are Will Miller, trumpet; Calvin Smith, French horn; and Allen Jones, tuba and bass trombone. They are free-lance musicians.

"We had an idea for a concert for schools," Bing said. "We wanted to do something different. We do a lot of talking and involve the audience in a fun idea. I like working with kids."

The Brass Collection gave a series of concerts for young people at the Hollywood Bowl last year. The repertoire ranges from fanfares to ragtime, jazz and Sousa marches.

"Our goal is to show young people how simple a brass instrument is in its construction and how similar all brass instruments are," Bing said.

"Hopefully, we are educating and entertaining at the same time," he said. "And we enjoy what we're doing. Hopefully some of it rubs off on the audience."

to do with either the actual day to day operation or ordering. It's a family business but I'm not sure what my role is."

"I don't like him coming up here, it's my store," she said half-seriously. "I allow him to come and help when we're in a bind — that's it."

"It amazes me how much time it takes up," Johnnie said. "Jeff, our son, runs the store and I do the buying and the classes."

The free classes in both candy-making and cake decorating take up a lot of time but Johnnie says she enjoys doing them. "They are very satisfying and there seems to be an unlimited supply of people out there who want to give it a try."

Johnnie said when they started their business, it was the Pop Shoppe and it went 'great guns' but gradually other things got more popular (cake and candy supplies) and they 'took over.'

Johnnie says they focus on the unusual in candies. "I never knew there were so many kinds of candy until we started to get into this. The first time I ordered, it scared me to death, the order was $2,000. Now I order 2000 pounds at a time and never think anything about it."

Johnnie says she is always trying to think of new things to do in the store. "It's a challenge. Instead of a little hobby, it's turned into something really great."

The shop recently started a loan/rental plan for specialty cake pans that is proving very successful. "We try to offer the things people are interested in and this pan lending has really taken off."

Right now the Seays are gearing up for big Christmas season. "It may be slow now but come fall people start thinking about Christmas candies and gift items and then we are busy right through Easter."

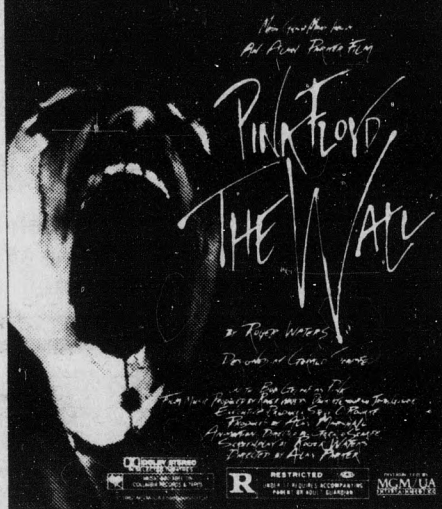

Johnnie said part of the reason she has enjoyed her 'shop' so much is she has become friends with her customers. "When I was in the hospital I got so many calls and cards from them, they really cared that I wasn't there." □

R.C. businesswomen going great guns

By Matt Coker

A saying which has been used quite a bit in the last few years is "the best man for the job is a woman."

It's a description that fits Fin-Wall Enterprises in Rancho Cucamonga.

Owned and operated by two women who could probably move a mountain if given enough time, Ruth Wallis and Lillian Finner drill, cut, rivet and shape aluminum alloy.

The result has been their own patented cases which hold fishing rods, skis, tools, antennas and underground communication equipment.

But their 6-year-old business got a real shot in the arm recently when they began making custom-made gun cases.

"We got pushed into the gun business," explained Wallis, the more talkative of the two. "Fishing we know. The gunsmiths — they were our mentors. They came to us. We didn't go to them."

After an in-depth study, polls of gun owners to determine what kind of case they wanted and five years of trial and error, Finner and Wallis perfected their shiny aluminum gun cases.

"Ours is the only one of its kind that's patented," Wallis claimed. "The others are made by Indians. Ours is the heaviest gauge on the market."

It took so long to come up with a flawless gun case because the weight and size had to be altered and durability had to be ensured, Finner said.

"Hunting people take better care of their equipment than fishing people," Finner said.

Fifteen years ago, the pair met through Ontario's professional women's club Soroptomist International. Finner, currently the president, had just moved with her recently retired husband to Upland from Parker, Ariz. A registered nurse, Finner had helped her husband in all phases of their aluminum awning business in Parker.

The new friends went on fishing excursions together, but the damage incurred by carrying rods in the open prompted Finner to talk Wallis into helping her design aluminum cases.

The cases caught on and fishing equipment companies such as Browning soon encased their own rods in Fin-Wall cases. Browning now includes the cases in its catalogues.

Fin-Wall Enterprises have manufacturing representatives all over the country and Sweden and Canada, which is their biggest market.

The beauty of their cases is the fact they cannot be damaged by airport baggage employees. Also, what is inside the cases is not known by anyone but the owner.

At exhibitions, "customers just can't believe

"We got pushed into the gun business. Fishing we know. The gunsmiths — they were our mentors. They came to us. We didn't go to them."

Ruth Wallis
R. C. businesswoman

us," Wallis admitted. "Exhibitors are not surprised, they know us. But customers are surprised. There aren't many women manufacturing. We're the only two women at exhibits that are not with their husbands."

The women are adamant about letting people know they receive no help from males — even the ones whose wedding rings they wear.

Though their husbands have been supportive, Wallis and Finner serve as sole makers, sellers, packers and office workers at their 3,000-square-foot company in an industrial center next door to Chaffey College's Independent Life Development Center.

The reason behind opening shop in Rancho Cucamonga was all in the name.

"When we'd say where our shop was at exhibitions, people would say 'Oh, Jack Benny country.' Primarily, we did it because people remember the name," Wallis said.

"People say I didn't know there was such a place," Finner snickered.

Though neither would divulge her age, it would be safe to bet both are older than 39, as Benny would have put it. Wallis, who lived in Ontario for 28 years before moving to Fontana with her husband, has four children, 17 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Finner has two daughters, one grandchild and another on the way.

Though others in the fishing tackle and gun business know them and their gender is not as much an oddity in their line of work as it once was, Wallis is still angered by the questions she fields at exhibitions.

"In January, we went to see what the market was for the gun cases," Wallis said. "Some of the men exhibiting didn't know what the alloy (of their product) was."

"We're not ERA (equal right amendment)," she continued. "We've been liberated all our lives." □

B-I-N-G-O spells out money for Panthers

By Ron Witt

When Chaffey College's athletic department held its first fund-raising bingo session at Ontario's American Legion Hall one Sunday afternoon last February, a scant nine people showed up to play.

The turnout, needless to say, wasn't exactly what parlor organizer and Panther athletic director Bob Olivera had in mind.

"We were extremely discouraged at first," recalls Olivera, who is trying to rebuild and help maintain sports on the CC campus. "But we thought it (bingo) might be the route to go instead of hustling ads or having car washes."

Five months later, patience, confidence in the basic program and an improved public response appears to have paid off.

One recent three-hour session (1-4 p.m.) attracted 81 people, or nine times as many as on that first forgettable Sunday. Another drew 65, and the smaller, more enthusiastic crowd purchased almost as many cards as the larger throng had.

"We'd like to get as many as 90 or 100 people come out," Olivera enthuses, "but it's financially successful as it is."

More players should mean additional profit, which amounted to $400 in one recent day. Olivera believes a $1,000 net (after overhead and concession costs) isn't out of the question, if conditions are right.

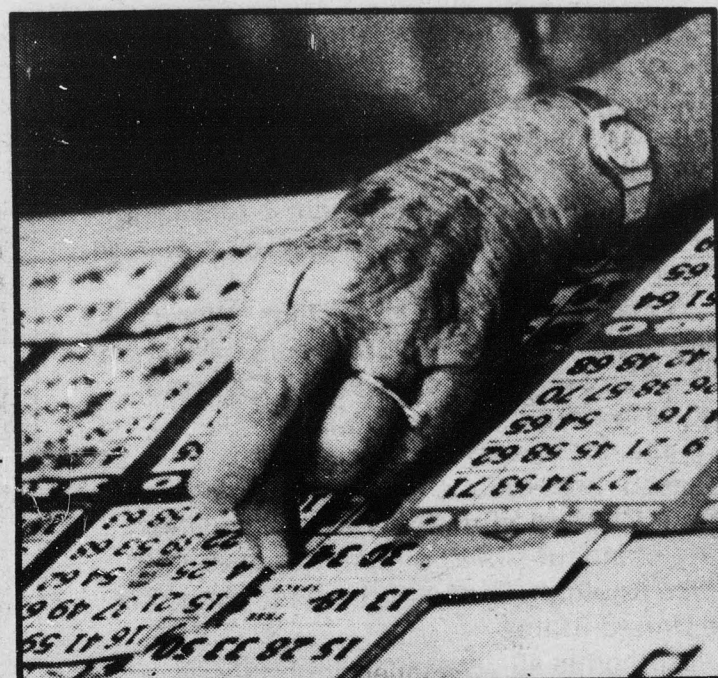

The Chaffey College administrator, himself a former coach at Montclair High School, has joined forces with Panther coaches to make the Sunday bingo event a going operation.

Coaches take turns helping at the sessions, and 70 percent of the net amount goes to defray expenses for his or her sport. The other 30 percent goes into a another

Just call the Colonel.

Have a goalie who wouldn't even let flies through the net, let alone a soccer ball? A player who practically lives on the President's honor roll.

Just give the Colonel a buzz. He'll know what to do with your budding superstar.

The Colonel is retired Army Colonel Steven Capasso, a 33-year resident of Upland. He makes scholars out of athletes.

"That's my scene," says Capasso. "My whole concept is to get the kids to study, getting them to make the grades it takes to get to college, because athletes need brains too."

Capasso has made a career out of helping young people get into the schools where they can exhibit their athletics skills as well as receive a high-quality education.

"Those youngsters need my help," insists Capasso. "The older people say they're going to help, but when it comes down to it, they say they don't have the time. I always make sure I have the time."

To suggest that Capasso knows everybody who is somebody in the field of athletics and education is to fall way short of the mark. If a student wants to play soccer for a college in North Dakota, Capasso could pick up the phone and dial the number of someone he knows who would help.

"I give tips, I get calls, I make my rounds," says Capasso. "I'll get a call from Europe from someone saying they've got a good kid who can play soccer. Then I spend the time trying to help him out."

A look at Capasso's phone bill would probably seem more like taking a glance at a United Nations membership list. Argentina, Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, Greece and France are just some of the places Capasso calls.

Capasso calls himself a "counselor for athletic and scholastic programs," but he's much more than that. He's a spokesman and representative for some of the major soccer schools around the United States. He directs clinics for coaches, players and parents alike around the world.

He's also a super scout and consultant to the NCAA, and has received credit for finding some of the best soccer talent around the country year in and year out.

Capasso just returned from Europe after a lengthy scouting mission, where he made contacts with players and coaches, observed various tournament games, hosted ceremonies, awarded trophies, made speeches and ran clinics.

Steven Capasso's better know as the Colonel.

And that was just one trip.

Universities across the country feature players with the Capasso "seal of approval." He's responsible for sending athletes to places like West Point, the Naval Academy, the Air Force Academy, William & Mary and the University of South Carolina.

He knows everyone.

"One kid once said to me that, 'When I write to a college, no one answers, but when you write, everybody answers,'" Capasso said with a chuckle.

Take, for example, one so-called Capasso masterpiece — the emergence of former Chaffey High School and San Diego State standout Cle Kooiman. Capasso still thinks Kooiman is one of the best players in the United States.

During his 40 years in the military, Capasso says he's seen it all. He served during World War II and has been in the presence of the likes of Generals Eisenhower, Patton and Bradley.

While in Europe during the mid-70s, Capasso was a radio announcer doing football games for American audiences. He also announced a few soccer games, and the next thing he knew, he was hooked.

Then came the day he helped his first youngster into the game.

"After I helped one, it turned out I helped a lot," admits Capasso. "It's a very pleasing avocation. I like to spend all my time helping kids. It doesn't matter if they're not athletes, either. I just have to help them."

Locals pace Mt. Baldy

Second-place finishes by Upland's Kathy Kirkpatrick (age 11-12 girls) and Claremont's Christopher De Young (9-10 boys) paced performances by Mt. Baldy Aquatics swimmers in the AB Long Course Meet at Irvine's Heritage Park Pool last weekend.

Kirkpatrick, who will be an eighth-grader at Pioneer Junior High School in Upland in the fall, took a runner-up spot in the A Division of the 100-meter breaststroke.

She also garnered a fifth in the 50 breast (A Division) and a sixth in the 50 butterfly (B).

It is Kirkpatrick who will swim the 50-meter breaststroke in the Junior Olympic Championships at Cypress College Aug. 7. De Young, who has qualified for the Junior Olympics in the 100-meter backstroke and 50 butterfly, took seconds in the 50 backstroke (A) and 200 individual medley (A).

De Young was busy elsewhere, taking thirds in the 100 butterfly (A), 200 freestyle (A) and 100 backstroke (A); fourths in the 50 butterfly (A) and 100 breaststroke (B), and fifths in the 100 freestyle (A) and 50 freestyle (A).

English team in exhibition

Upland Celtic boys' soccer teams will be busy Saturday at Upland Soccer Park, 11th Street at Mountain Avenue.

In a featured game at 10 a.m., the Mountain View League co-champion Celtic faces the Carr Hill team from London, England. Carr Hill, comprised of 15-year-olds, is London regional champion and is beginning an American tour locally.

Another game pitting Upland Celtic and Diamond Bar 9-year-old teams will precede the main event at 9 a.m.

Upland rates Thorobred tourney favorite

Inland Empire League champion Upland Police and host Rancho Cucamonga are among teams entered in the Thorobred Regional Tournament starting Friday at Ontario's John Galvin Park.

Upland takes on Fontana in the tourney opener at 5:30 p.m., and Rancho meets Irvine in the nightcap at 8. The games will be seven-inning affairs.

Other teams in the tourney include Cypress, San Diego and two Coast League representatives to be determined. They begin competition in the week-long tourney Saturday night.

At stake is a berth in the Zone Tournament in San Jose. The Zone winner, in turn, goes to the Thorobred World Series in Norfolk, Va.

Upland, which won league honors with a glossy 15-3 record and is 26-4 for the season, looms one of the favorites in the tourney field.

Leading Upland performers include second baseman Steve Jackson, designated hitter Royce Jaime, third baseman Larry Trudeau, catcher Mike Sheridan and first baseman Pete Rodi.

The pitching staff is a formidable one with the likes of Mark Trautwein, Jamie Filippi, Jeff Nolan, Vic Marin, Nick Pignotti and Rob Conahan available.

Filippi is 5-1 and Nolan 4-1 for the season. The latter sports a 15-1 record over three Upland campaigns.

The starting nod Friday may go to Trautwein (2-2), a southpaw who has come back from arm trouble.

Mary Warda and Chaffey College are both Sunday bingo winners.

UHCC taking memberships

Applications are still being accepted for membership in Upland Hills Country Club's men and women's golf club, according to golf director Steve Brown.

Although open less than a week, the response for membership in the new public golf course has been overwhelming. More than 200 men have joined and the figure for the women's club is fast approaching 60.

"We're real pleased about the opening week," said Brown. "It has been a very exciting time for all of us."

Association members enjoy reduced green and cart fees, preferred starting times, handicapping services and monthly association events.

The 5,700-yard, par 70 course officially opened for play last Friday.

There have already been firsts established on the course. Ken Carlson of Upland registered the first hole-in-one, recording an ace on the 138-yard par 3 No. 6.

fund used for major purchases or expenses CC athletics might incur.

"Every one of the coaches has taken part, and each has been more than supportive," says Olivera.

The public's interest in bingo is as basic as the college's.

"It's the money," declares Olivera. "They want the cash. We have $25 and $50 prizes, and we arbitrarily upped those by $10 each last week."

But gathering at the same time and place each week also has had its appeal, and Olivera is confident the same friends will return through the pro football season.

"Pro football will actually encourage people to come down there," he predicts. "The husbands may watch football, but the wives like it as their meeting place."

Olivera admits he would rather have his school's athletic budget fully-funded, but he is willing to try to make up the differences with extra effort.

"I don't think this is the way education should be handled," says Olivera. "But I'm willing to accept it for the times. If we want to run a Class A program at Chaffey, it's something we need to do."

Proceeds from the bingo help out where budget funds often fall short.

Olivera says he would like to continue the bingo program at least until next February, the end of Chaffey's year lease.

Birthing education series to be offered by PVCH

Nutrition during pregnancy, fetal growth and development, and understanding the visit to the obstetrician are a few of the topics to be covered in the first session of Pomona Valley Community Hospital's four-part birthing education series, "Great Expectations," scheduled to begin on Saturday, Aug. 6.

The classes will be held on Saturdays from 9-11 a.m. in the hospital's cafetorium for four weeks.

Other topics to be covered include prenatal exercise, physical and emotional changes during pregnancy, how to deal with discomfort, and infant car safety. While course content might be most helpful to women in the early stages of pregnancy, the information presented can be applicable during any stage, sponsors say.

In addition, expectant parents nearing full term are invited to bring their children four years and older to the hospital's Pitzer Auditorium at 11:30 a.m. on the fourth Saturday of the month for a special class and tour of the PVCH maternity facilities.

Persons interested in attending "Great Expectations" may meet at the hospital at the scheduled time or call 623-8715, extension 1058 for a brochure.

'America's playgrounds' offer much

CHANTILLY, VA. — Why are the 154 national forests in the United States nicknamed "America's playgrounds?"

Because that's where you'll find millions of American families each year — camping in the wilderness while they discover nature's beautiful scenery and enjoy all types of outdoor recreation.

The National Forest System is made up of more than 200 million acres of land, 100,000 miles of trails, 70,000 miles of streams and rivers and about 7,000 developed campgrounds.

Every year, more than 40 million people camp in the national forest campgrounds, while many others stay at nearby privately-owned campgrounds during their visits to forest areas.

Camping in recreation vehicles (RVs) is the "in" way to camp in the forests, according to national forest officials who say campsites are situated in spacious, natural surroundings.

RV camping — whether in a motor home, travel trailer or any other type of RV — is popular because RVs can provide families with homelike comforts while they enjoy the great outdoors.

The camping season in the national forests generally runs from Memorial Day through Labor Day, although some campgrounds remain open year round. Most charge a small entrance fee.

Reservations are not required at any campsites and because they're allocated on a first-come, first-served basis, it's probably a good idea to arrive early in the day. There are usually no time restrictions on campground stays, but in the most popular forests, overnight stays can be limited to about two weeks.

In addition to camping, many forests offer opportunities for all types of recreation including canoeing, skin diving, swimming, fishing, hunting, mountain climbing, horseback riding and hiking. In some areas, there's snowmobiling, skiing and other cold-weather sports in winter.

The national forests also have some of the most breathtaking natural wonders ever to be seen, from the giant Sequoia trees in Sequoia National Forest in California to the crystal caves, waterfalls and canyons of Black Hills National Forest in South Dakota.

Forest Service officials say there's at least one national forest within a day's drive of almost anywhere in the U.S., making them ideal for short, weekend camping trips as well as for longer, family vacations.

An informative 55-page booklet called "National laughs and hugs each other...it's a very warm chapter."

The ages of chapter members range from 16 to 75. "Seeing a 16 year old and 70 year old standing side by side, laughing is a unique experience. You see that in music age is not important at all and that's nice," Whitney said.

"It's quite common to have mothers and their daughters (in the organization) It's not usual to find them sharing a hobby," she said.

"An old gal like me can get along with a young girl in blue jeans. Some girls bring their babies and everyone loves the little ones," Harris said.

"One of the first things we tell new members is to get a road map and learn to read it because we travel a great deal," Whitney said.

Some of their travels have taken them to Chino prison. "As a chorus we entertained at Chino prison when one of our members discovered her former mailman. She asked 'What are you doing here?' and he told her he killed a man," Whitney said.

"The most difficult time we sang was at Lanterman State Hospital. That was a real heartbreaker for all of the women. It's hard to sing with tears but we did it," she said.

"We don't use music. We can do a 30 to 45 minute show without music," Whitney said. She said the group sings acappella or without accompaniment making them more flexible.

"All we need is four people and a pitch-pipe and we can perform by singing in an area that might limit (other forms of entertainment). We can sing at bedside...and to people who can't always experience the joy of music," she said.

Besides voice training, Sweet Adelines are taught to dress and make-up for the stage. Whitney said the group has an ongoing vocal program even though many members can't read music.

"They learn by rote or tape their parts. We also have members who are extremely advanced," she said.

She said women learn to dance and carry themselves as well as sing. "We pride ourselves on being a performing organization." □

R.C. school focuses on children's senses

children," Thewes, who oversees both the Claremont and Rancho Cucamonga operations, said. "Younger children having older children in their class and seeing what they do gives them something to strive for. It motivates them to go through all the steps."

Thewes and Tara Talbert, the local administrator, can easily provide testimonials of the Montessori methods — they both have children enrolled in the Claremont school.

While some Montessori methods are used by public school teachers, the entire program is quite unique.

The AMI was established in 1929 by Dr. Maria Montessori and Mr. Mario M. Montessori. Dr. Montessori, the first female physician in Italy, had become famous in the late 1800s after suggesting oversized desks used in classrooms hindered children educationally because they were uncomfortable to sit in all day.

She designed furniture to fit small children, but her interest in education did not end there. Montessori teaching methods still used today came out of a home she opened for teaching handicapped and social outcast children. After studying the children's progress, Dr. Montessori decided to take her methods to regular children.

When Dr. Montessori first came to the U.S. in the 1950s, the schools didn't go over very well, but the popularity of Montessori schools can be better witnessed in Europe where institutions up to a half century old still exist.

Today, there are more than 3,000 Montessori schools throughout the country. Of these, only 300 (including those in Claremont and Rancho Cucamonga) are AMI approved. (There are independent schools using the Montessori methods, but do not have AMI approved instructors).

"A school AMI has to have consultation by one of the Montessori representatives every year," Thewes explained. "Montessori teachers must be certified through the organization. All materials used are imported by AMI."

The AMI headquarters in Amsterdam, Holland, is recognized as the international authority on Montessori education. While Montessori preschool teacher training facilities are spread over five continents, those with a desire to become elementary Montessori teachers would either have to go to Italy (and learn the methods in Italian) or Washington, D.C.

To become a Montessori instructor, a bachelor's degree (preferably in education) is required. It then takes another year of training at a Montessori center and some student teaching to be a qualified preschool instructor. There are 11 preschool training centers in the U.S.

The AMI schools are each individually owned and operated. Though they must go through more training, Montessori teachers are paid less than public school instructors.

"The teacher is kind of a mother in the classroom," Thewes said. "Those children are her's for many hours a day. It's a big responsibility."

Day care is provided and the personnel are a teacher's own staff. They work with the teacher so they will not direct children in a way which does not conform with daily lessons.

"Teachers also want to work with parents," Thewes said. "They don't want the school to be an institution. They want it to be an extension of home."

Students coordinate their own curriculum and are given a choice at the beginning of the day what they would like to do first.

"We try to get the child inter-motivated so their wants and needs are coming from themselves," Thewes said. "That way the student has a choice."

There is no recess at Montessori schools. Children have the freedom to get up from a chair or floor mat and walk about the classroom when they please. But Thewes said if a child gets too unruly, they have ways to burn up that energy.

"If a child is running through the classroom pulling everything off the shelves, we take them outside and let them run," Thewes said. "We tell them to run all they want. By the time they've run back and forth five times, they're ready to come in and get to work."

She continued: "It sounds like some kind of punishment and in a way it is, but it is better to have them run that energy off than hurt someone."

There are not many discipline problems at the schools, Thewes claimed. If a child hits another, teachers talk to the student to find out if that was the best avenue to take.

"We ask the child why that was the only thing they could have done," she said. "We get the child to talk about the incident and think about the incident. If you give them respect, they will give it back."

The Montessori Academy conducts open houses every week. The next one is scheduled for tonight at 7 p.m. There will also be one Aug. 3 at 10 a.m.

During the school year, the Montessori Academy hours are 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The optional day care programs runs from 7 to 8:30 a.m. and then afterschool until 6 p.m. There is also a part-time school for those under the age of two from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. "We build on successes so they can be successful people. We don't want geniuses here. We're interested in having successful people," Thewes claimed.

No stop signs slowed early Upland drivers

During my earlier years around Upland, stop signs or signals were unknown. One could travel the length of Euclid Avenue or its cross streets, almost unhampered, unless a very occasional wagon, buggy or car happened along. Anyone who might have predicted today's amount of traffic would have been off to the funny farm.

I can well remember riding with Grandpa and Grandma Hawthorne, westward on Eighth Street, in their old Mitchell car, towards their home near Benson Avenue. As we approached San Antonio Avenue, the first cross street, Grandma would direct, "Papa, sound your horn." The same at Mountain Avenue. She was one of the best backseat drivers in this end of the county. On other occasions, she would direct, "Papa, slow down, twenty-five miles an hour is fast enough for anybody."

Around 1930, Gramps sold the 10 acres of lemons, with good home, for the astounding sum of $25,000. In those days, in the movies, $50,000 was the standard ransom for kidnapped princesses or kids of the most wealthy. Gramps used a little of their windfall to have contractor Niel McCallum build them a fine home at 829 N. Second Ave. It still looks like new.

They bought a 14 foot house trailer, and towing it with a Dodge coupe, toured the country. On one run through Texas, Grandpa noted the speedometer standing at 80 miles per hour. By that time, it didn't phase Grandma at all.

A Sunday afternoon drive, after Sunday school and church, was just the thing, in those days, and I well remember one of them. With friends along, the Tom Tatton family of Ontario, we had gone all the way to Corona.

At one point, Pop had to use the brakes rather hard, and they squealed loudly. Pop turned to Tom and said, "I guess I will have to oil those brakes." Sitting between them, I took note of this obvious need.

Pop was starting to teach me a few simple things about mechanics, and one item was how to use a grease gun on the many grease fittings on our four cylinder Oldsmobile touring car. (The Model T Ford had been chopped and turned into a pickup truck for Pop's work car). Like everyone, his work week was of six days, with all of Sunday off. In school, Saturday was a day off too.

The brakes on cars, then, were not as they are now. The brake bands, which applied stopping friction to the brake drums on the two rear wheels only, were in plain sight on the outside of the brake drums. They are inside, now, and on four wheels.

On the Saturday, following the Corona trip, I recalled the obvious need, and proceeded to saturate the brake linings with oil from a squirt can. I expected thanks from Pop.

Soon after, Mom said, "Come on kids, it's time to get to town for the week's shopping." Off we went, west on 14th Street to Euclid, down to Ninth Street, and east to a parking place at the curb on the north side of First National Bank (now Crocker Bank).

Until sometime in the late 1950s, downtown parking was on the diagonal, against the curb. For the first time, since leaving home, Mom hit the brakes. There were none. We went right over the curb and plowed into the side of the bank.

Free family communication workshop planned August 17

A free family communication workshop will be offered by a pair of licensed marriage and family therapists August 17 from 7 to 10 p.m. at Alta Loma Psychological Associates, 9033 Baseline Road, suites J and K, Rancho Cucamonga.

The workshop, "Families: Discovering and Appreciating Each Member," will focus on improving communication, refining parenting skills and gaining a better understanding of self and others by exploring personality styles.

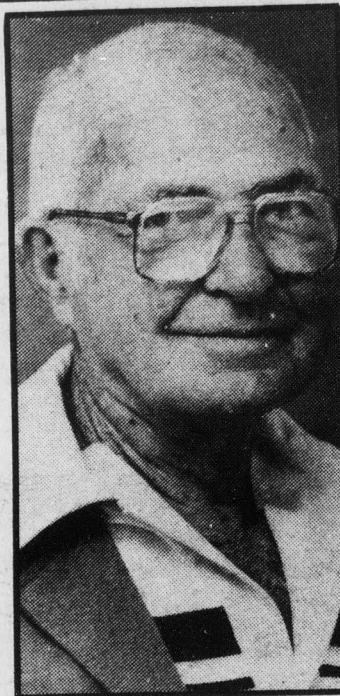

Participants will learn to capitalize on their strengths and deal more effectively with their weaknesses with the help of Georgia Lamphere and Virginia Sullivan Miller, who recently joined Alta Loma Psychological Associates.

Both therapists have worked extensively with adolescents and their families, conducted parenting workshops and offer relaxation training, hypnosis and creative imagery work.

For more information about the workshop or any other counseling and testing services offered at Alta Loma Psychological Associates, call 980-3567.

Glancing Backward

By

Wilson, trotted out, exclaiming, "Mrs. Nicholson, the door is around the corner." Next, was the short drive to Waterman's Garage to check on the problem.

After much rinsing of the brake parts in gasoline, they worked fine. Realizing his originating part in the fiasco, Pop was not too hard on me. And, after this unusual treatment, the brakes never squealed again.

Waterman's Garage, in the building still standing at 132 N. Euclid, was owned by Bill and Bertha Waterman from 1922 until 1942. Bill was an excellent mechanic, and with his crew, could fix anything. The doors were open from 6:30 a.m. until near dark. Bertha, still an Uplander at age 93, certainly did her part.

The single gas pump was right on the Euclid curb line. Originally, it was the kind with a 10 gallon glass tube, up top, refilled by hand with a back and forth lever on a hand pump. Markers, inside the glass, indicated gallons. Later, an electric pump was installed.

Bertha dispensed gas, checked and added water and oil, cleaned windshields, and sent everyone off feeling good, after a cheery conversation. Meanwhile, she handled charge accounts, billing, paying, collecting, ordering and banking, which often included a stop at Mac's Drug Store for an ice cream soda.

By the early 1940s, the Watermans had bought four 10-acre lemon groves. They sold the garage and spent full time at ranching and enjoying their 42 foot ocean cruiser, the "Amiga." □

RAP offers hope to troubled youths

By Marilyn Skidmore

For Louie, the Youth Guidance Release Aftercare Program (RAP) has provided an escape from gangs and given him hope for the future.

The 18-year-old area resident said he previously led a "rough life which only brought me being locked up for assault, burglaries and gang-related activities."

Louie said he became associated with RAP, conducted by Youth for Christ, while a ward at Camp Paige, a Los Angeles County Probation Department facility in La Verne. "I heard an announcement over the camp's public address system about an activity being offered (by RAP) and decided to check it out," he added.

He met Greg Salce, a program volunteer who is now his caseworker.

Louie said through counseling he came to realize that "my life was not headed in any direction."

Through the program and his association with Salce, he said he has become motivated to return to school and complete his education. His main goal is to find a job.

RAP falls under the umbrella of Youth Guidance, a division of Youth for Christ which has its local office in Covina.

Thomas Morris, Youth Guidance director, said RAP is the only such project in the nation offered by the Christian organization.

Program literature states RAP's overall objective is to "reduce the recidivism rate of juveniles released from youth camps in Los Angeles County who reside in the San Gabriel and Pomona valleys."

It seeks to provide counseling, support, jobs and effective role models for troubled youth, he added.

Randy Cox, RAP director, said volunteers become associated with youths while they are confined at Camp Glenn Rockey in San Dimas and Camp Paige and then continue to work with them after their release.

The wards can find RAP assistance through staff members, camp personnel or simply by expressing an interest in participation.

RAP volunteers conduct sports activities at the camps to provide a casual setting for the wards to inquire about the program.

To be accepted into the program, a ward must pledge to work with his caseworker for at least three months and he must also have his parents' permission.

After a ward enters the program, he and his caseworker begin meeting individually. Cox compared the association between the caseworker and ward to "a big brother relationship but a bit more detailed."

In becoming acquainted, a caseworker assesses how he can assist the ward upon his release from camp, said Cox.

Based on the assessment, the caseworker and the youth draw up a contract charting certain goals and the time in which the ward wants to achieve them.

Once the ward is released from camp, he and his caseworker will meet on a regular basis for three to six months, said Cox.

While the youths are in custody, they tend to be highly motivated toward the program, he added. "This is due in part to the fact they don't have temptations and problems found in the outside world."

While in custody, "they change a lot. But after they are released, they find nothing has changed at home."

Because of this, they find a need to discuss with someone their problems in adjusting.

"I am someone Louie can contact outside of the home if he has a problem he wants to discuss or needs a sounding board," Salce said.

Twelve local youths released from camp are presently working directly with RAP caseworkers.

Since the local camps receive youths from various areas of the county, RAP workers meet with many who reside outside the valley.

Because of geographic restrictions and staff limitations, the volunteers aren't able to counsel those who reside outside the area as frequently as they did in camp.

But, Cox said, 30 additional youths from outside the valley maintain contact with caseworkers and are able to participate in some activities.

RAP workers also refer youths to agencies located in their communities.

Once the youths are released, they and their caseworkers get together for activities such as going to the movies or shooting baskets. They are also taken on camping trips. Cox said many have never been camping before.

Morris said they have gone wilderness camping, rock climbing and canoeing.

Most of the RAP staff members are volunteers. Only Cox and another staff member whose task is to find jobs for youths in the program hold paid positions.

RAP has initiated an industry council for summer youth employment. Under government provisions, 85 percent of youth employment costs will be returned through tax credits.

Cox said volunteers donate about eight hours a week in the program. They go to the camps on a regular basis, undergo training and must write reports pertaining to each youth's progress.

The program has received official recognition from Los Angeles County Supervisor Pete Schabarum. In an open letter to residents, Schabarum praised Youth Guidance for establishing the RAP program.

"It has made a big difference to youths in my supervisorial district in detention camps," Schabarum said. "If you believe, as I do, that the time has come to rely less on government and more on community and neighborhood structures, I encourage you to support Youth Guidance." □

Lily Wu awarded bank scholarship

An Upland High School graduate has received First Trust Bank's annual award of the Ralph Arnold Memorial Scholarship.

Lily Wu received a $2,000 scholarship. A graduate of Upland High School, she was a member of the California Scholarship Federation, treasurer of a campus service club, participated in the American Field Service Club, which assists foreign students, and statistician for the wrestling team.

She came to the United States eight years ago with a minimal working knowledge of the English language and has achieved notable accomplishments. She plans to attend Cal State Fullerton, where she will major in business administration with a minor in business education.

Wu is the second person in her family to receive a scholarship award. She is the daughter of Ruth Wu, administrative clerk in the bank's trust department.

The scholarship award is named in honor of Ralph V. Arnold and is presented to students who are rated highest in six outstanding areas: academic achievement, extracurricular activities, demonstrated leadership qualities, integrity and moral character ambition, drive and energy and other qualities.

Scholarships were also awarded to Tricia Ortega and Leonard Schilling.

Lester Stroh, M.D., left, chairman of the Vineyard National Bank's board of directors, and Steven Sensenbach, right, president of the bank, present copies of "A Tribute to the Romantic History of Rancho Cucamonga" to Maxine Strane, founding member of the Casa de Rancho Cucamonga Historical Society, and William Tangeman, society president.

Reprints given to history society

Vineyard National Bank has given the Casa de Rancho Cucamonga Historical Society more than 300 reprints of the "Tribute to the Romantic History of Rancho Cucamonga."

The article appeared in the opening pages of the bank's annual report to shareholders.

Representing the bank were Lester Stroh, M.D., chairman of the board of directors, and Steven Sensenbach, president of Vineyard National Bank. Recipients for the Historical Society were its president, William Tangeman, a teacher and longtime historian-member of the society, and Maxine Strane, founding member of the society and former teacher in Rancho Cucamonga schools.

Mrs. Strane had conducted the writer of the bank's annual report on an in-depth tour of the house. The reprints given to the society are designed to be used as an information pamphlet for people who tour the house.

The Rains House is now the home of the Casa de Rancho Cucamonga Historical Society. Tours are conducted regularly.

YMCA's begin recruitment for programs

The West End and Chino Family YMCAs are launching their annual recruitment drives for members to join the Y's parent-child family programs.

Programs consist of Y-Indian Guides for fathers and sons, Y-Indian Princesses for fathers and daughters and Y-Indian Maidens for mothers and daughters.

The programs are geared toward 6- to 9-year-old children with their parents.

Y-Indian Braves is a new program for mothers and sons. It will begin this year if there is sufficient interest.

The Y also offers Y-Trailblazers for fathers and their sons 10 to 12 years old.

Each program involves the parent and child in a local "tribe" — a group of six to nine other parents and children.

Tribes meet in members' homes and work on various projects and activities. Several campouts and family events are held during the year, with all tribes participating.

More than 200 families now participate in the programs in the West End of San Bernardino County.

For more information, persons may call the West End YMCA at 986-5847 or the Chino Family YMCA at 591-1708.

The YMCA is a member agency of the West End United Way.

Workshop will prepare woman for fall season

Sandra Segalla, color analyst, will present four workshops on color choice, make-up design, and wardrobe planning at the YWCA of Greater Pomona Valley, to assist women in planning their fall appearance.

"Color is the Key" will be held from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday and repeated at the same time on Aug. 6.

"Put Your Best Face Forward" will be held from 1-4 p.m. on Saturday.

"Wardrobe Wizardry" is scheduled for 1-4 p.m. on Aug. 6.

All workshops will be held at the YWCA office in the Alpha Beta shopping center at the corner of Willow and Garey in Pomona. For information or to register, call 622-1269.

ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF UPLAND AMENDING UPLAND MUNICIPAL CODE ADOPTING REGULATIONS PERTAINING TO SECOND DWELLING UNITS IN SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENTIAL ZONES

The City Council of the City of Upland does hereby ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. 9402.200 "S" of Chapter 9402 of the Upland Municipal Code is hereby amended to add, in alphabetical order to said section, the definition of a "Second Dwelling Unit" as follows:

Second Dwelling Unit: A detached or attached dwelling unit which provides complete, independent living facilities for one or more persons, inclusive of, but not limited to, permanent provisions for living, sleeping, eating, cooking, access and sanitation, on the same lot or parcel as the permitted primary dwelling.

SECTION 2. Subsection 9430.051.140 "RS" - Single-Family Residential Developments - General - Conditional Uses and Structures is added as follows:

140 Second Dwelling Unit in accordance with the development standards for same as provided in Chapter 9490, "Second Dwelling Unit in Single Family Residential Zones".

SECTION 3. Chapter 9490 entitled "Special Use Criteria" is hereby amended to read as follows:

Chapter 9490 - Second Dwelling Unit in Single Family Residential Zones.

9490.010 Description and Purpose.

.010 Description. This Chapter shall be known and cited as "Second Dwelling Unit in Single Family Residential Zones". The provisions set forth herein are intended to regulate the establishment and maintenance of a second dwelling unit on any lot or parcel in the various single family residential zones in the City of Upland as an accessory use, as authorized by State Enabling Legislation (Government Code, Section 65852.2 et seq.).

.020 Purpose. It is hereby found and declared that the improved utilization of the City's existing housing resources offers an innovative and cost-effective solution to promoting and insuring the provisions of accessory housing which is safe, decent, sanitary, energy efficient, and of high quality. It is the purpose of this chapter to ensure that:

.0201 The establishment of a second dwelling unit on a lot or parcel in a single family residential zone will be carried out in such a manner that the existing quality of the aesthetic and physical environment will be maintained; and

.0202 The adverse effects of overcrowding of streets, utilities, municipal parks and private open spaces, and other community and private facilities will be prevented or minimized; and

.0203 The addition of accessory housing in the various single family residential zones will be encouraged in order to alleviate a current unfulfilled housing need, while giving consideration to the citizenry's values relating to aesthetic enjoyment and the retention and enhancement of the overall, low-density character of Upland's residential neighborhoods.

9490.040 Permitted Accessory Uses and Structures.

A second dwelling unit shall be permitted as an accessory residential use and structure, only where clearly incidental to a permitted primary residential dwelling, in the CP, PUC, and the various RM Zones, excepting the RM-4.4MH Zone, subject to the development standards as set forth for the specific zone in which the second dwelling unit is to be located.

9490.050 Condition Uses and Structures.

The establishment, creation or development of a second dwelling unit on a lot or parcel in a single family residential zone may be permitted as an accessory residential use and structure subject to the issuance of a Conditional Use Permit granted by the City of Upland in compliance with all procedures and requirements thereof. All provisions of the Chapter, and such other provisions which the City may deem necessary to impose, shall be made a part of all Conditional Use Permits for said uses and structures.

9490.100 Site Development Standards.

A second dwelling unit erected or located in any single family residential zone shall comply with the provisions of Chapter 9404 "Site Development Standards" - General and of this Chapter.

Provided, further, that the City Administrative Committee and the City Planning Commission may establish such conditions and additional performance standards as may be deemed necessary to protect abutting property and to ensure that the purpose and intent of the Chapter is observed.

9490.102 Building Site Requirements.

.010 Existing Non-Conforming Structures. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 9401.040.031, a building which exists on a lot or parcel in a single family residential zone which, for purposes of the Chapter, serves as a primary residential dwelling unit and is not in conformity with the site development standards for the zone in which said building is located, shall hereby be declared to be non-conforming.

Provided, further, that said non-conforming building shall be made to conform with the site development standards of the zone in which located prior to the establishment, creation or development of a second dwelling unit.

.020 Minimum Lot Area and Dimensions.

.021 Minimum Lot Area. The provisions of Section 9430.102.010 shall apply.

.022 Minimum Lot Dimensions. The width and depth for the affected lot or parcel shall be not less than the minimum required for the zone in which located.

.030 Maximum Lot Coverage. Maximum lot coverage by all buildings and structures shall not exceed thirty-five (35) percent of the total lot area.
